Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, no person may teach in a public school unless the person is licensed by the department of public instruction (DPI). In order to receive a regular license, an individual must comply with certain general requirements that apply to all types of licenses as well as specific requirements that apply only to the license for which the individual applied. The general requirements include a bachelor's degree and completion of an approved professional education program with a specified number of credits in certain subjects and completion of a semester of student teaching.

Current law also requires DPI to establish an alternative teacher training program consisting of 100 hours of instruction. Any person who holds a bachelor's degree in engineering, mathematics, biology, chemistry or physics, has at least 5 years of experience as an engineer, mathematician or science professional and passes the national teacher's exam (administered by the educational testing service, inc.) in mathematics or science may attend the training program. DPI must issue a professional teaching permit to any individual who satisfactorily completes the training program. The permit authorizes the individual to teach mathematics or science, as specified by DPI, in grades kindergarten to 12 for 2 years if he or she is supervised by a person who holds a regular teaching license.

This bill makes a number of changes to the alternative teacher training program:

1. The bill expands the covered fields to include music, art, foreign language and computer science.

2. The bill eliminates passage of the national teacher's examination as a requirement. Instead, the bill requires that the applicant demonstrate competency in his or her subject to DPI's satisfaction.

3. The bill requires that the person be supervised by a person who holds a regular teaching license only for the initial 2-year licensure period.

4. The bill provides that the permit is renewable for 5-year periods. DPI must renew the permit or grant the permit holder a regular teaching license if the employing school board certifies that the person is a successful teacher.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
