Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law contains certain requirements that apply to health maintenance organizations, preferred provider plans and limited service health organizations (managed care plans). Those requirements address when an employer must offer a standard plan in addition to a managed care plan, coverage under a managed care plan for a child who is away at school, reporting disciplinary action taken against a participating provider and a grievance procedure. This bill provides for additional requirements which, in general, benefit enrollees under managed care plans and providers that provide health care services on behalf of those plans.

The bill requires a managed care plan to ensure that enrollees have adequate access to health care services by including a sufficient number and sufficient types of primary care providers throughout the service area of the plan. The plan must cover the services of nonparticipating specialist physicians for those enrollees who have medical conditions that cannot be adequately treated by participating providers. A managed care plan must provide enrollees with 24-hour telephone access for emergency care and authorization for care. A managed care plan must cover emergency care and may not require prior authorization for such care.

A managed care plan must permit an enrollee to choose a primary provider from a diverse list of participating providers. An enrollee with special medical needs must be able to select a specialist physician as a primary provider. A managed care plan must cover 2nd opinions from participating providers and must offer a point-of-service option under which an enrollee may obtain covered services from one or more nonparticipating providers of the enrollee's choice.

A managed care plan must provide coverage for any drug or device that is approved by the federal food and drug administration, as long as it is determined to be medically appropriate and necessary by the treating physician, regardless of whether the drug or device is being used for the purpose for which approved by the federal food and drug administration. The treating physician must be able to determine the drug therapy that is appropriate for the enrollee. A managed care plan must establish a drug utilization review program for the purpose of ensuring appropriate drug therapies for enrollees.

If a managed care plan limits coverage for experimental treatment, the plan must disclose who is authorized to make a determination on limiting coverage and the criteria used to determine whether a treatment, procedure, drug or device is experimental. Whenever coverage for experimental treatment is denied, the plan must provide the enrollee with a denial letter that advises the enrollee of who made the coverage decision, the reasons for the denial, alternative treatments that would be covered under the plan and the plan's grievance and appeal procedures.

A managed care plan must establish an internal quality assurance program, a peer review process and processes for selecting participating providers and reevaluating those providers after initial acceptance into the plan. A managed care plan must appoint a physician as medical director to be responsible for the treatment policies, protocols, quality assurance activities and utilization management decisions of the plan.

A managed care plan must inform enrollees of any financial arrangement between the plan and a participating physician that operates as an incentive or bonus for restricting services. In addition, a managed care plan may not penalize or terminate the contract of a participating provider for discussing with an enrollee financial incentives under the plan. A managed care plan may not penalize or terminate the contract of a participating provider for making referrals to other participating providers or for discussing medically necessary or appropriate care with an enrollee.

Under current law, the commissioner of insurance is required to promulgate rules for preferred provider plans to ensure that enrollees are not forced to travel excessive distances to receive health care services and to ensure continuity of care for enrollees. The bill requires those rules to apply more broadly to all managed care plans.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
