Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law permits a school district to award a high school diploma to a person who is at least 65 years old, attended high school in the school district, and left high school before graduation to serve under honorable conditions during a war. This bill would permit the school district where such a veteran resides to award a high school diploma to the veteran if he or she attended high school in any Wisconsin school district.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:
