Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under the current family and medical leave law, an employer, including the state, employing at least 50 individuals on a permanent basis in this state must permit an employee who has been employed by the employer for more than 52 consecutive weeks and who has worked for the employer for at least 1,000 hours during the preceding 52-week period to take six weeks of family leave in a 12-month period and two weeks of medical leave in a 12-month period. Family leave may be taken for the birth or adoptive placement of a new child or to care for a child, spouse, or parent who has a serious health condition. Medical leave may be taken when the employee has a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform the employee's employment duties. An employee is not entitled to receive wages or salary while taking family leave or medical leave, but may substitute, for portions of family or medical leave, other types of paid or unpaid leave provided by the employer.

An employee who intends to take family or medical leave for the birth or adoptive placement of a child or for planned medical treatment must give the employer advance notice of the birth or adoptive placement or planned medical treatment. In addition, for planned medical treatment, the employee must make a reasonable effort to schedule the medical treatment so that it does not unduly disrupt the operations of the employer. If an employee requests family leave to care for a child, spouse, or parent who has a serious health condition or requests medical leave for a serious health condition of the employee, the employer may require the employee to provide certification by a health care provider of that serious health condition.

On return from family or medical leave, the employer must place the employee in the position that the employee held immediately before the leave began or, if that position is not available, in an equivalent position. An employee who is on family or medical leave does not have the right to accrue any seniority or employment benefit while on leave, except that the employer must maintain group health insurance coverage for the employee under the same conditions that applied before the leave began. An employer that interferes with, restrains, or denies the exercise of any right under the family and medical leave law may be ordered to take action to remedy the violation, including providing the requested leave, reinstating the employee, providing up to two years of back pay, and paying reasonable actual attorney fees. In addition, the employee may bring an action in circuit court to recover damages caused by the violation.

This bill requires an employer, including the state, that employs at least 50 individuals on a permanent basis in this state to permit an employee who is the victim, as defined in the bill, of a crime to take leave from employment for any of the following purposes, unless the leave would unduly disrupt the employer's operations (crime victim's leave):

1. To attend an adult sentencing hearing or a juvenile consent decree or dispositional hearing.
2. To attend a hearing on a petition for modification of an inmate's bifurcated sentence or for release of an inmate to extended supervision or a parole interview or hearing.
3. To attend a hearing to determine whether a person is exempt from the requirement that the person register as a sex offender or a hearing to determine whether a child sex offender may work with children.

ASSEMBLY BILL 269

4. To receive counseling to assist the employee in recovering from the psychological effects of the crime, except that an employee may take no more than 12 hours of crime victim's leave for this purpose in a 12-month period.

An employee is not entitled to receive wages or salary while taking crime victim's leave, but may substitute, for portions of crime victim's leave, other types of paid or unpaid leave provided by the employer. An employee who intends to take crime victim's leave must give the employer advance notice of the hearing or counseling that the employee is taking crime victims leave to attend, and the employer may require the employee to provide certification, by the law enforcement agency that is responsible for investigating the crime, that the employee is a victim of a crime. In addition, for counseling, the employee must make a reasonable effort to schedule the counseling so that it does not unduly disrupt the operations of the employer and, for a hearing, the employer may require the employee to provide a copy of the notice of the hearing.

On return from crime victim's leave, the employer must place the employee in the position that the employee held immediately before the leave began or, if that position is not available, in an equivalent position. An employee who is on crime victim's leave does not have the right to accrue any seniority or employment benefit while on leave, except that the employer must maintain group health insurance coverage for the employee under the same conditions that applied before the leave began. An employer that interferes with, restrains, or denies the exercise of any right relating to crime victim's leave created under the bill may be ordered to take action to remedy the violation, including providing the requested leave, reinstating the employee, providing up to two years of back pay, and paying reasonable actual attorney fees. In addition, the employee may bring an action in circuit court to recover damages caused by the violation.

Finally, for purposes of crime victim's leave, the bill defines "victim" as a person against whom a crime or delinquent act has been committed or, if that person is a child, the parent, guardian, or legal custodian of the person or, if that person is physically or emotionally unable to exercise the rights of a crime victim, a family member or designee of the person or, if that person is deceased, a family member of the person or a person who resided with the person or, if that person is incompetent, the guardian of the person.
