Referred to Committee on Energy, Utilities and Information Technology.

1 AN ACT to create 196.37 (3m), 196.371 and 196.39 (5) of the statutes; relating
2 to: specifying the rate-making principles applicable to certain electric
3 generating facilities, providing an exemption from emergency rule procedures,
4 and granting rule-making authority.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a public utility may not change its rates for electric service unless the Public Service Commission (PSC) has approved the change in a rate-making proceeding. This bill allows a public utility that proposes to purchase or construct an electric generating facility to apply to the PSC for an order that specifies in advance the rate-making principles that the PSC will apply to facility costs in future rate-making proceedings.

The bill allows the PSC to issue such an order if the PSC determines both of the following: 1) that the order will provide a sufficient degree of certainty to the public utility, investors, and rate payers with respect to future recovery of the facility's costs; and 2) that the order is otherwise in the public interest. If the PSC issues an order, the public utility has the option of accepting or waiving acceptance of the order. If the public utility accepts the order, the rate-making principles specified in the order are binding on the PSC in all future rate-making proceedings regarding the public utility. In addition, unlike other orders under current law, the PSC may not subsequently rescind or alter the order. If the public utility waives acceptance of the order, the PSC must withdraw the order and consider the costs of the facility in all future rate-making proceedings in the same manner as the PSC considers costs for which no such order has been issued.

The bill requires a public utility that applies for an order to describe the public utility's proposal for recovering the costs of the facility. The proposal must describe all of the following: 1) the facility's economic useful life; 2) the facility's proposed return on equity; 3) the facility's proposed financing mechanisms; 4) the proposed method for determining the costs that may be recovered in rates; 5) any other proposals or information that the public utility determines are necessary for providing certainty regarding cost recovery to the public utility, investors, and rate payers; and 6) any information specified by rule by the PSC.

The bill requires the PSC to hold a hearing on an application for an order. The hearing requirements depend on whether the public utility has proposed to purchase or construct the facility. If the public utility proposes to purchase the facility, the PSC must hold a hearing and determine whether to issue an order within 180 days after determining that the application for the order is complete. If the public utility proposes to construct the facility, current law requires the public utility to apply to the PSC for a certificate approving the construction. Depending on the generating capacity of the facility, current law may also require the PSC to hold a hearing on the application for the construction certificate. The bill allows the PSC to hold a hearing on an application for an order in conjunction with the hearing, if any, that is required under current law for the construction certificate. In addition, the PSC must determine whether to issue the order no later than the date the PSC is required to take final action on the construction certificate.

The bill also does the following: 1) prohibits the PSC from requiring that a public utility apply for an order under the bill or that a public utility accept or waive acceptance of the order; and 2) requires the PSC to promulgate rules for administering the bill's requirements.
