Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill creates requirements that apply to transactions in certain metals for scrap.

Under the bill, “scrap metal” generally means a manufactured item that contains metal; metal obtained by disassembling a building or manufactured item; or other metal that can be processed for reuse. The bill defines four kinds of scrap metal. “Ferrous scrap” means scrap metal consisting primarily of iron and steel, but does not include nonferrous scrap, metal articles, or proprietary articles. “Nonferrous scrap” means scrap metal consisting primarily of metal other than iron or steel, but excludes aluminum cans and certain other items. “Metal article” means a manufactured metal item that is usable for its originally intended purpose. “Proprietary article” includes certain articles marked as the property of certain types of entities, certain aluminum or copper articles, metal beer kegs, manhole covers, and certain cemetery articles.

Under the bill, a scrap metal dealer (dealer) may purchase scrap metal other than nonferrous scrap, a metal article, or a proprietary article from any person over age 18. A dealer may purchase nonferrous scrap, a metal article, or a proprietary article from any person over age 18 if the dealer does all of the following: 1) obtains photographic identification from the seller or deliverer; 2) records in a ledger the seller's or dealer's identifying information, the license plate number of the seller's or deliverer's vehicle, and certain descriptive information about the scrap or article; 3) obtains photographic or video images showing the seller's or deliverer's vehicle and the vehicle's license plate; and 4) for a purchase of nonferrous scrap or a metal article, obtains the seller's signed declaration that the seller is the owner of the items being sold. For a purchase of a proprietary article, a dealer must additionally do one of the following: 1) obtain documentation establishing that the seller lawfully possesses the article, or 2) document that the dealer has made a diligent inquiry into the seller's right to sell the article and submit a report describing the article to a local law enforcement department.

The bill requires a dealer to make the ledger available to a law enforcement officer or security agent and to maintain the information in the ledger for at least two years after recording it. Under the bill, a local law enforcement officer may request that all dealers in the jurisdiction report all purchases of nonferrous scrap, metal articles, and proprietary articles.

A dealer who violates the provisions of the bill is subject to a fine of up to $1,000, imprisonment for up to 90 days, or both. If the dealer has committed one previous violation, the dealer is subject to a fine of up to $10,000, imprisonment for up to nine months, or both. If the dealer has committed more than one previous violation, the dealer is subject to a fine of up to $10,000, imprisonment for up to three and one-half years, or both. Under the bill, a county, town, city, or village may enact an ordinance governing the sale and purchase of scrap metal if it is at least as stringent as the provisions in the bill.

The bill also creates a civil action that allows the owner of a stolen proprietary article, such as a manhole cover, of nonferrous scrap, or of a metal article, to recover from the thief the cost of replacing the item stolen. The amount that may be recovered in the civil action is reduced by the amount that is collected as restitution or recompense in any criminal or municipal court action related to the same act or by the amount paid to the plaintiff under a deferred prosecution related to the same act.

Under current law, the penalty classification for theft of property varies depending on the value of the property. If the property value is no more than $2,500, the crime is a misdemeanor, and the convicted person is subject to a fine of up to $10,000, imprisonment for up to nine months, or both; if the property value is more than $2,500, the crime is a felony. If the property value is more than $2,500 but no more than $5,000, the person is subject to a fine of up to $10,000, imprisonment for up to three years and six months, or both. If the property value is more than $5,000 but no more than $10,000, the person is subject to a fine of up to $10,000, imprisonment for up to six years, or both. If the property value is more than $10,000, the person is subject to a fine of up to $25,000, imprisonment for up to ten years, or both. For purposes of determining property value, "value" is generally defined as the lesser of the market value of the property at the time of the theft or the cost to the victim of replacing the property within a reasonable time after the theft. Under this bill, if the property stolen is scrap metal, value includes any costs that would be incurred in repairing or replacing any property damaged in the theft or removal of the scrap metal.

Because this bill creates a new crime or revises a penalty for an existing crime, the Joint Review Committee on Criminal Penalties may be requested to prepare a report concerning the proposed penalty and the costs or savings that are likely to result if the bill is enacted.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
