October 18, 2011 – Introduced by Senators LASEE, HOLPERIN, GROTHMAN and OLSEN, cosponsored by Representatives RIVARD, BIES, TIFFANY, A. OTT and BROOKS. Referred to Committee on Workforce Development, Small Business, and Tourism.

- 1 AN ACT to amend 707.37 (6); and to create 707.28 of the statutes; relating to:
2 nonjudicial foreclosure of time-share estates and licenses.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Nonjudicial (or administrative) foreclosure of time shares

Under current law, a time-share estate is defined as a right to occupy a real property unit during at least four separated periods over at least four years, together with a property interest in the real property unit. A time-share license is defined as a right to occupy a unit, or any of several units, under a license or lease agreement during at least four separated periods over at least four years, without a property interest in the real property unit. A person's interest in a time-share estate may be foreclosed in a court proceeding (judicial foreclosure) in the same manner as an interest in real property is foreclosed if the person defaults in payments to a creditor that has a security interest in the time-share estate, or if the person does not pay assessments that were imposed for time-share expenses and that have become a lien. Current law specifies that a lien for assessments against a time-share license may be foreclosed as provided under the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). This bill sets out nonjudicial (administrative) procedures for foreclosing security interests in, and assessment liens against, time-share estates and time-share licenses. The bill provides that a person seeking to foreclose an owner's interest in a time-share estate or a time-share license (foreclosing entity) must use the administrative procedure, except that the owner of a time-share estate may object to the use of the administrative procedure, in which case the foreclosing entity must use the judicial foreclosure procedure. In addition, the bill provides that a foreclosing entity that uses the administrative procedure to foreclose an owner's interest in either a time-share estate or time-share license waives the right to a deficiency if the proceeds of the sale in the administrative procedure do not cover what is owed to the foreclosing entity.

SENATE BILL 241

Procedure for time-share estates

To foreclose an owner's interest in a time-share estate, the foreclosing entity must first send notice to the owner, informing the owner of the default, of the amount of the default, and that he or she may, within 30 days, cure the default or object to the use of the administrative procedure. If the owner does not timely cure the default or object to the use of the administrative procedure, he or she has waived the right to a judicial foreclosure, and the foreclosing entity may proceed with the administrative foreclosure, which includes sale by public auction. The foreclosing entity must publish notice of the foreclosure sale in a newspaper having general circulation in the county in which the time-share estate is located. The notice must be published once in each of three successive weeks, and the first publication must be at least 30 days before the date of the sale. In lieu of publishing the full notice three times in a newspaper, the foreclosing entity may post the full notice on an Internet site for three successive weeks and publish the Internet site in a newspaper once in each of three successive weeks. In addition to publishing notice of the sale, the foreclosing entity must mail written notice of the date, time, and place of the sale to the time-share estate owner and all persons having a lien of record on the time-share estate.

The foreclosure sale must take place on the time-share estate property or at another location in the county where the time-share estate is located and must be conducted by a registered auctioneer or an attorney who is a member of the State Bar of Wisconsin. The successful buyer at the foreclosure sale, which extinguishes the former owner's right to redeem, takes the time-share estate free and clear of any assessments owed by the former owner. The time-share estate is still subject, however, to any outstanding taxes and to any liens or other encumbrances that were recorded before the mortgage or assessment lien on which the administrative foreclosure is based. The foreclosing entity must: 1) within 10 days after the foreclosure sale, deliver to the buyer a deed or other instrument transferring title and an affidavit attesting that all requirements under the statutes for administrative foreclosure have been met; 2) within 30 days after delivering the deed or other instrument and the affidavit, mail the former owner and all persons holding liens that were junior to that of the foreclosing entity a notice that details the results of the sale; and 3) within 30 days after the foreclosure sale, apply the sale proceeds first to the expenses of the sale and then to the amount owed to the foreclosing entity. If there are any surplus proceeds after that, the foreclosing entity may pay the junior lienholders or may turn the surplus proceeds over to the court and ask the court to determine the proper distribution. If there are no junior lienholders or if they have all been paid, the foreclosing entity must pay any surplus to the former owner, or to the state treasurer if the foreclosing entity is unable to locate the former owner within one year after the sale.

SENATE BILL 241Procedure for time-share licenses

Under the bill, the administrative procedure for foreclosing a security interest in, or an assessment lien on, a time-share license is the procedure used under the UCC when a default occurs in a secured transaction. Under this procedure, the foreclosing entity may sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of the time-share license by private or public proceedings. The method, manner, time, place, and other terms of the disposal must be commercially reasonable. The bill requires that the foreclosing entity must send at least 30 days' written notice to the time-share owner before any proceedings may be brought. As with administrative foreclosure of an owner's interest in a time-share estate, disposal of the time-share license by private or public proceedings extinguishes the former owner's right to redeem and the buyer takes the time-share license free and clear of any assessments owed by the former owner but subject to any outstanding taxes and to any liens or other encumbrances that were recorded before the security interest or assessment lien on which the administrative foreclosure is based.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

22 on, the time-share license in accordance with s. 409.610, except that “secured party”
23 as used in s. 409.610 means “foreclosing entity” for purposes of this subsection, and 24 “collateral” as used in s. 409.610 means “time-share license” for purposes of this
25 subsection. No proceedings may be brought to foreclose the security interest or lien

4 entity or other person specified in the project instrument.

5 (b) Consequences of sale. Upon the sale of the time-share license, the 6 time-share owner's right to redeem the time-share license is extinguished. Unless

8 time-share license free and clear of any outstanding assessments owed by the 9 previous time-share owner to the managing entity or other person specified in the 10 project instrument or time-share instrument.
