The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

JOINT LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL PREFATORY NOTE: This bill was prepared for the Joint Legislative Council Study Committee on Property Tax Assessment Practices. Under current law, a taxpayer who wishes to appeal a property tax assessment may choose among several different opportunities for appeal, beginning with an opportunity for informal discussion with the assessor during the "open book." Following the "open book," the taxpayer must appeal his or her assessment in a hearing before the local board of review, unless the board of review elects to waive the hearing requirement for the taxpayer. Following action by the board of review, a taxpayer may continue the appeal either before the department of revenue, under s. 70.85, Stats.; in circuit court under s. 70.47 (13), Stats.; or in circuit court under s. 74.37, Stats. The latter appeal under s. 74.37, Stats., is referred to as an action for excessive assessment.

ASSEMBLY BILL 902

Under the process for appeal as an excessive assessment, a taxpayer must first file a claim with the taxation district that collected the tax. If that claim is disallowed by the taxation district, the taxpayer may bring an action for excessive assessment in circuit court. Such an action must be filed within 90 days after disallowance of the claim by the taxation district, unless the board of review waives its hearing requirement, in which case the taxpayer's claim is deemed disallowed and the action under s. 74.37, Stats., must be filed within 60 days.

Under the bill, a taxpayer may bring a circuit court action for excessive assessment without first having to file a claim with the taxation district. Additionally, the bill generally aligns the requirements for timely filing of appeal. With a limited exception for first class cities, the bill specifies that a taxpayer also has 90 days to file an action under s. 74.37, Stats., following waiver of a hearing by a board of review.
