DIRECTORY OF HIGH QUALITY CERTIFIED PARTS

The Directory of High Quality Certified Automotive Parts is published by the Certified Automotive Parts Association three times a year (January, May and September). It is a cumulative listing of all of the certification changes for the previous four months. CAPA provides weekly updates to all electronic estimators. CAPA's Monthly Parts Update, distributed in months when the Directory is not published, provides the same information summarized in the CAPA Directory, but it is for people who need the information on a monthly basis.

Should you need CAPA's Monthly Parts Update, please send a request to: Monthly Parts Update, CAPA, 1518 K Street, NW, Suite 306, Washington, DC 20005. You must include your name, title, company name, address (no P.O. Boxes), city, state, zip code, telephone and facsimile number. Please print or type your request.

THE CERTIFIED AUTOMOTIVE PARTS ASSOCIATION

The Certified Automotive Parts Association (CAPA) is a non-profit organization established in 1987 to develop and oversee a testing and inspection program for certifying the quality of parts used for collision repairs. CAPA is not a manufacturing, marketing or sales organization. The program provides consumers, auto body shops, part distributors and insurance adjusters with an objective method for evaluating the quality of certified parts and their functional equivalency to similar parts made by car companies. CAPA was founded to promote price and quality competition in the collision part industry, thereby reducing the cost of crash repairs to consumers without sacrificing quality.

CAPA's objectives are to:

- Develop quality standards for the manufacture of competitive auto body parts;
- Ensure that parts bearing the CAPA Quality Seal are in compliance with CAPA Quality Standards;
- Provide independent laboratory participation in the program to ensure integrity and conformity to generally accepted guidelines for third-party certification programs;
- Publicize the certification program to users—consumers, auto body shops, insurance companies, government agencies, collision repair estimators and distributors.

CAPA's policies are set by a nine-member Board of Directors representing auto body shops, consumer groups, insurance companies and part distributors. CAPA's independent Validator conducts the testing, inspection and compliance aspects of the program. Competitive auto body parts that meet or exceed CAPA Quality Standards for fit, materials, and corrosion resistance are allowed to display the CAPA Quality Seal and are listed in a directory, which is widely available to the crash parts industry.

The CAPA Testing and Certification Program: In order for a part to be certified by CAPA, a participating manufacturer (the Participant) must first allow a detailed review and inspection of its factory and manufacturing process. An independent testing laboratory (the Validator) determines whether the factory is able to meet CAPA's Quality Standards. The Validator evaluates purchasing, tooling, painting, manufacturing, quality control and inspection processes to ensure that the Participant is capable of producing aftermarket parts that meet CAPA Quality Standards and are functionally equivalent to the original equipment manufacturer's parts. This evaluation determines whether the factory will be approved by CAPA.

Once the factory has been approved, the Participant may submit individual parts for certification. Samples of each part are tested for material properties, fit, finish, paint adhesion, coating performance, weld integrity, adhesive performance and corrosion, and are examined to confirm that they include markings identifying the Participant and the country and date of manufacture. If the sampled parts comply with all of the CAPA Quality Standards, then and only then, is the Participant allowed to apply a CAPA Quality Seal to that part—the final step in the certification process. Any part that does not have a CAPA Quality Seal may not be considered certified, regardless of how that part is listed in the CAPA Directory or other information sources.

Once the manufacturing facility has been approved, and one or more parts have been approved for certification, the factory and parts are subject to regular random checks to verify that CAPA Quality Standards are continuously maintained. CAPA also has a program which encourages users of parts bearing the CAPA Quality Seal to file a complaint if they believe the part may not meet our standards. CAPA's random checks and complaint program may lead to the decertification of parts which are found to no longer comply with CAPA Quality Standards.

CAPA has a Technical Committee made up of experts in the collision repair and auto body part industries. This committee performs periodic, in-depth reviews of the Standards, refining them as required, to assure the continued quality of CAPA certified parts. CAPA does not warrant parts nor does it assume responsibility for the manufacturing or quality assurance process. The warranting of parts is between the buyer and seller.

Participants retain sole responsibility for their products, as well as the responsibility of ensuring that the products to which they affix the CAPA Quality Seal actually conform to the applicable Standards. Through this program, Participants actually certify that their parts comply with CAPA Quality Standards. CAPA's independent laboratory validates the Participants with CAPA Quality Standards in accordance with the American National Standards Institute Procedure for Third Party Certification Programs, Z34.1-1993.

What CAPA Certifies - CAPA Quality Standards apply to various types of parts made from different materials. CAPA is constantly expanding the certification program to include more parts and new materials. Currently, two specifications which set quality requirements for parts made of metal (CAPA 101), and plastic (CAPA 201) are in place. Each specification provides detailed testing and inspection procedures to ensure the quality of the parts covered by that specification. Where possible, all test procedures refer to nationally recognized tests such as those of ASTM and SAE.

CAPA 101 covers metal automobile parts that are primed, decoratively painted, plated with metallic coatings, or painted and plated with metallic coatings, including: deck lids, door shells, fenders, grilles, headlight bezels, hoods, pickup truck beds and box sides, quarter panels, radiator supports, side moldings, and tail gates. Additional part types will be added as appropriate. The specification includes requirements for dimensional checks (form and fit), metallurgical analysis (composition, mechanical properties and thickness), corrosion protection, appearance, adhesive and weld integrity, production and assembly requirements, fasteners/hardware, and quality control procedures. Form and fit measurements covered by this specification must be made using a CAPA approved checking fixture specially fabricated for each part, or a coordinate measuring machine in conjunction with a CAPA approved part staging device, and a master part from the original equipment manufacturer.

CAPA 201 covers plastic automobile parts that are unprimed, primed, decoratively painted, plated with metallic coatings, or painted and plated with metallic coatings, including: bumper covers, fenders, front and rear fascias, grilles, header panels, headlight bezels, hoods, and side moldings. Additional part types will be added as appropriate. The specification includes requirements for dimensional checks (form and fit), material analysis (composition and material properties), appearance, adhesive integrity, coating performance, fasteners/hardware, production and assembly requirements, and quality control procedures. Form and fit measurements covered by this specification must be made using a vehicle, a CAPA approved checking fixture specially fabricated for each part, or a coordinate measuring machine in conjunction with a CAPA approved part staging device, and a master part from the original equipment manufacturer.

RECALL REIMBURSEMENT FORM

Distributors holding decertified CAPA parts are entitled to a refund, replacement part or credit from the applicable Participant. They can receive one of the above (the Participant decides which) by cutting out the section of the part (a coupon) bearing the CAPA Quality Seal and submitting the coupon(s) to CAPA Headquarters with a completed Recall Reimbursement Form within ninety days of public notice of decertification. "Public Notice" refers to the Decertified listing in the CAPA Recall Report. Contact CAPA directly at Recall Report, 1518 K Street, NW, Suite 306, Washington, DC 20005 or FAX (202) 737-2214 if you would like to receive the Recall Report.

Follow these steps to obtain a replacement, credit or refund:

1. Copy and complete this form for each part number. Make sure to include part coupons and all required information. (Seals alone are not sufficient.) Mail coupons and forms to CAPA within 90 days of public notice.
2. CAPA will verify that public notice of the decertification took place within ninety days of receipt, and make sure all data and coupons are correct.
3. CAPA will forward a copy of each form to the Participant and notify the Distributor when this is done.
4. The Participant must send the distributor and CAPA an acknowledgment of receipt of the request for compensation within thirty days, indicating which type of compensation they will provide. If the Participant does not acknowledge within thirty days CAPA will remove the Participant from the program for a period of time to be determined solely by CAPA and terminate its License Agreement.
5. Participants must provide compensation within ninety days of receipt of the initial request. If the Distributor does not receive the compensation within this time frame, CAPA will remove the Participant from the program for a period of time to be determined solely by CAPA and terminate its License Agreement. Failure to pay fines can result in the removal of the Participant from the program.

WARNING: TAMPERING WITH SEALS IS ILLEGAL

CAPA Quality Seal is a key element of the CAPA program and as such is owned by CAPA and protected by federal state law. Only participating manufacturers are licensed to apply this mark after undergoing a stringent examination of their quality control procedures, thorough testing of a representative sample of the aftermarket parts which they produce in a rigorous, on-going inspection program. Possession of CAPA Quality Seals by anyone other than the Participant to whom CAPA sold them or illicitly placing seals on parts is a legal offense. Discovery of parties engaged in either action will result in public notice of the offense and possible legal action.

CAPA CERTIFIED PART

Testimony of Jack Gillis
Executive Director
Certified Automotive Parts Association

Before the Wisconsin
Senate and Assembly on
Assembly Bill 416

July 31, 1997

My name is Jack Gillis; I am Executive Director of the Certified Automotive Parts Association. I also serve as Director of Public Affairs for the Consumer Federation of America and am author of The Car Book, which is prepared in cooperation with the Center for Auto Safety. I am here today representing the Certified Automotive Parts Association to comment on Assembly Bill 416.

CAPA is a non-profit organization, which oversees a testing and inspection program that certifies the quality of parts used for auto body repairs. CAPA's goal is to promote price and quality competition in the crash parts industry, thereby reducing the cost of crash repairs to consumers without sacrificing quality. We establish standards for competitive parts in order to ensure their equivalency to car company parts and provide consumers, auto body shops, and insurance companies with an objective method of evaluating their functional equivalency.

As a consumer advocate, I have spent over eight years working on this program in order to protect American consumers from a car company parts monopoly. Car companies spend millions of dollars to discredit aftermarket parts, scare consumers, co-opt body shops and intimidate state legislatures into protecting their monopoly with thinly veiled legislation like this bill. This state by state approach has been adopted by car companies because they were unsuccessful achieving the same results on the national level when they tried to alter federal design patent laws in 1993. Supporting this legislation will, in effect, promote a monopoly and destroy the free market that Wisconsin consumers have traditionally embraced.

Consumers should also have the right to know that tying the use of an aftermarket part to the voiding of a new car warranty, as body shops and car companies imply, is against Federal law.

What is really at stake is the consumer protection inherent in a truly free and responsible marketplace. What the car companies and body shops are asking this Assembly to do is to legislate out of business an industry which is forcing them to offer competitive prices. For example, from the time of their introduction in 1983 to 1989, prices for fenders for the Chevrolet Chevette and Honda Accord, which were subject to competition, dropped 44 and 38 percent, respectively, once competition was introduced. During the same period, front-door prices, not subject to competition, rose 30 and 45 percent for the same two models. One of the most powerful examples of how consumers are hurt by this monopoly is best exemplified by comparing a Ford hood with a combination TV/VCR. A hood for a 1994 Ford Taurus retails at $400. Comparably, a combination TV/VCR made by RCA retails for $389. It is not uncommon for a car company to charge the same price for a simple stamped piece of metal as RCA charges for something that requires complex assembly, has thousands of parts, performs multiple operations, includes various buttons and controls, transports video tape into place, is full of electronic parts all surrounding a fragile, sophisticated, cathode ray tube. Ford's pricing is what happens when a product exists in a monopoly. RCA has many competitors forcing it to provide high quality at a low price, Ford does not. These are many examples of price gouging by car companies when competition is absent.

This bill effectively establishes car companies as the benchmark for quality. BEWARE. As a consumer advocate who has spent over 20 years studying automobiles, may I respectfully offer a serious warning: Using car companies as your benchmark for quality is inviting disaster.

Each year, automakers recall millions of vehicles for safety related problems. In fact, in 1995, a record 17.8 million cars and trucks were recalled for safety-related defects -- more cars were recalled than sold that year. Furthermore, each year autos are the most complained about product sold in the United States. A simple check with the Wisconsin Attorney General's office will tell you what your citizens think of car company quality. Yet, this legislation puts you in the position of telling the car owner, "Insist on quality--use only General Motors parts. Insist on quality--use only Ford parts." The Wisconsin Legislature ought to beware of using car companies as its benchmark of quality and safety. Wisconsin consumers know better.

The car companies claim that the CAPA standards do not cover safety. Comments that there is something wrong with the safety of CAPA parts are irresponsible. CAPA certified parts do not have significant safety ramifications--nor are there any federal safety standards for these types of parts. And I should be concerned--I've spent over 20 years of my life fighting for safer cars. Crash tests conducted on the one part that could potentially have safety ramifications (the hood) show that it performs no differently in crash tests than those hoods made by the car companies. Ironically, in a recent attempt to discredit CAPA parts before body shops at a body shop trade show, an organization conducted an unscientific crash test on a vehicle with a certified fender and hood. While the test was designed to find fault with CAPA certified parts, the sponsors had to acknowledge publicly that the CAPA certified hood and fender performed in the same manner expected of a car company part.

Is there reason to prohibit aftermarket parts because some are bad? No manufacturing process I know of is perfect -- certainly not that of a car company. However, in the CAPA program, when we discover bad parts, they are decertified and recalled. The car companies do not do this. Nevertheless, would it make sense to force the industry out of business because of mistakes? If that were the case, what would this Assembly's position be on Ford, GM, and Chrysler whose safety defects force the recall of millions of cars each year? CAPA's presence in the marketplace assures the consumer that quality will not be sacrificed in the name of competition. This legislation would essentially take away that assurance.

On another note, there are those who would like you to believe that there is something wrong with the fact that CAPA is funded by the insurance industry. This allegation flies in the face of logic. If the insurance industry was, in fact, interested in foisting poor quality parts on the American consumer, the last thing they would do is establish a non-profit, independent, certification organization that fully complies with generally accepted guidelines for third party certification programs-- and hire consumer advocates to manage it.

Additionally, I want to point out that some of the most outspoken critics of the insurance industry, including the Consumer Federation of America, Ralph Nader's Public Citizen, and Consumer's Union, have gone on record in support of CAPA and aftermarket parts--quite an unlikely event if there were something inherently wrong with the insurance industry's initially funding such an organization.

It is clear, ladies and gentlemen, that this legislative effort is a thinly veiled attempt to provide the car companies with a monopoly on aftermarket parts. Consumer groups are concerned any time a monopoly is protected, and this legislation will go a long way to protect car company monopolies. Americans are not afraid of competition. Nor, I assume, are Wisconsin consumers. Yet, the spirit, intent and result of this legislation is to kill competition. CAPA Standards offer a marketplace solution, rather than a legislated one. Again, I urge you to vote for competition and quality. Vote for consumer's right to protection against a monopoly. Vote against this bill. Thank you for your time.

President
Wisconsin State Senate

Representative Clifford Otte
Chair, Assembly Committee on Consumer Affairs
109 West, State Capitol

Dear Cliff:

Thank you for holding a hearing on Assembly Bill 416 relating to the use of original manufacturer replacement parts for vehicles.

Due to previous commitments, I am unable to attend the hearing on this bill. However, I hope you will consider my support, as the chief sponsor in the Senate.

Present law requires that insurers inform their clients of their directive to use nonoriginal parts when authorizing payment for the repair of a vehicle. However, the consumer has no ability to reject the proposed nonoriginal parts and instead request original parts.

This measure will allow consumers the opportunity to have their vehicles repaired with parts that are made by or for the original manufacturer of the vehicle. It would only effect vehicles that are relatively new (less than 5 model years old).

We have insurance to protect our investment. Sometimes insurers cut costs in repairing vehicles by only allowing that nonoriginal parts be used. The parts may not fit as well as those made specifically by the manufacturer, and the quality and integrity of the vehicle may be compromised.

In every area today, the consumer has been required to be more and more self-reliant and responsible. This measure recognizes the fact that one's vehicle is a large, important investment and one that most consumers wish to maintain. This bill removes a barrier to consumer choice in caring for a vehicle.

Furthermore, the three states that have this type of legislation (West Virginia, Rhode Island, and Indiana) have not experienced any increase in insurance rates.

Your favorable consideration of this measure would be appreciated. Thank you for your assistance and support.

Most sincerely,

FRED A. RISSER

WIB STRONGLY SUPPORTS AB 416 FOR ORIGINAL MANUFACTURER REPLACEMENT PARTS

PREPARED FOR : THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON CONSUMER AFFAIRS
DATE : JULY 31, 1997

Assembly Bill 416 strengthens Wisconsin's consumer protection laws. The bill has the strong support of Wisconsin Independent Businesses.

The "original manufacturer replacement parts" issue has become of great concern in recent years. WIB has frequently heard from auto collision technician professionals of their concern that the insurance industry is, on too many occasions, preventing a body shop from restoring a motor vehicle to its appropriate condition by restricting the types of replacement parts that are authorized for use. "Cheaper" may be better for the insurance company. "Cheaper is rarely better for the motorist who is the insurance consumer.

WIB greatly appreciates the timely hearing on AB 416 and wishes to extend our thanks to Chairman Otte and the entire committee. The Assembly Committee on Consumer Affairs has taken significant steps toward protecting Wisconsin consumers in 1997. Approval of AB 416 will be another major move forward.

On behalf of the 50,000+ people who own 16,000 businesses, 9,000 farms and drive cars and trucks in Wisconsin, WIB thanks the committee for your support !
