Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate
SB 350 requires all health insurance plans offered to state employees to have an independent review process available under certain circumstances for participants who have health care services denied or payments reduced by the health plan. The independent review will be available if the value of the health care service or payment reduction exceeds $250 and is denied or reduced because the treatment is experimental or the service does not meet the plans requirement for medical necessity, appropriateness, health care setting, level of care or effectiveness. A fee of $25 is charged to the insured for each review. The cost of SB 350 is indeterminate, though it is not expected to be material. The bill will tend to increase costs to the state to the extent the independent review results in an increase in health insurance premiums paid by the state. This will occur when the independent review organization orders the treatment paid or when plans, as a result of independent review, modify their claims payment practices and begin to pay claims that would otherwise have been denied in the past. Plans likely will incur increases in administrative costs associated with the reviews. There may be a small offsetting reduction in ETF administrative costs if the review process results in fewer appeals to the Group Insurance Board.
