Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

The legislation moves the quadrennial presidential preference primary from the first Tuesday in April, the date of the spring election, to the third Tuesday in February, the date of the spring primary. The legislation also empowers the Elections Board to establish a different date for the presidential preference primary if adjoining states, other than Iowa, set a date for the purpose of holding regional presidential primary.

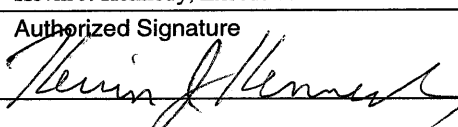

The legislation ensures that all municipalities in the state will have an election on the date of the spring primary or another date in addition to the spring election. It is unlikely that a regional primary would be held on the date of the spring election because it is later than the dates of at least two adjoining states, Michigan and Illinois.

Local governments would assume the cost of administering this election in addition to the regularly scheduled elections. Very few municipalities have a spring primary unless there is primary for supreme court justice. Municipalities would pay the cost of absentee voting, poll workers, canvassers, polling place rental and staff overtime. These costs are estimated to be at least $1,000,000

The Elections Board would have additional costs for preparing notices and communications with county and municipal clerks and the public. The Elections Board will also incur personnel costs for limited term or temporary staffing too ensure that the required election notices, candidate certifications and election result certifications are completed. These costs are estimated to be at least $15,000.
