Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under the open enrollment program, a pupil may attend any public school located outside of his or her school district of residence if the pupil's parent or guardian complies with certain procedures and meets certain application deadlines. School boards' acceptance and rejection criteria for open enrollment applications may include, among other things, availability of space. Beginning on January 1, 2002, a school board may include in its count of occupied spaces pupils and siblings of pupils who are already attending school in the nonresident school district. In addition, if a nonresident school board receives more applications than there are spaces available, the nonresident school board must determine on a random basis which pupils to accept, after giving preference to pupils and siblings of pupils who are already attending school in the nonresident school district.

This bill requires a school board also to give such preference to pupils whose parents or guardians are employees of the nonresident school district and allows a school board to include these pupils in its counts of occupied spaces. In addition, the bill allows a school board to create a waiting list for open enrollment.
