Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

Municipal clerks will incur additional costs to process absentee ballots received after election day. These costs include preparing lists of military voters, transmitting ballots to county canvass boards and following up with military electors who are notified that they will no longer receive an automatic ballot.

County clerks will incur additional costs to conduct supplemental canvass procedures when additional absentee ballots are received after election day. These costs include meeting notice and per-diem costs as well as any associated administrative expenses.

County clerks will also incur costs for expedited ballot printing in the event that the certification of election results is delayed by supplemental canvass proceedings.
