Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

Current law found in ss.346.03(1), ss.347.25(1) and ss.347.38(4), prohibits any vehicle, from being equipped with a flashing light except for authorized emergency vehicles such as police vehicles, fire department vehicles, and ambulances. Current law also prohibits any vehicle other than an authorized emergency vehicle from being equipped with a siren.

Proposed legislation 2005 AB 712 provides that privately owned motor vehicles used by human organ procurement organizations, or under an agreement with organ procurement organizations, are authorized emergency vehicles and may be equipped with red or red and white flashing, oscillating, or rotating lights and must be equipped with a siren. The proposal also allows physicians, medical personnel and/or designee involved in organ transplantation to operate such a vehicle equipped with these lights and sirens. However, anyone who operates such a vehicle must have passed an approved course in emergency vehicle operation (typically offered through technical schools), and the motor vehicle must be marked as an organ transplant vehicle or emergency medical device transport in order for these exemptions to apply. The design standards for marking these vehicles would need to be approved through amendment of TRANS 309.19.

2005 AB 712 would also amend ss.346.03(1), ss.347.25(1) and ss.347.38 to allow both privately and publicly owned, authorized emergency vehicles to use their rotating or flashing lights and sirens when transporting an organ for human transplantation, when transporting medical personnel for the purpose of performing human organ harvesting or transplantation. However, current law generally already provides law enforcement with the discretion to use emergency lights and sirens in these situations.

Since publicly owned, authorized emergency vehicles are already equipped with flashing or rotating lights and sirens, no cost would be assessed to the state for installing them.

Revision of TRANS 309.19 to reflect changes pursuant to AB 712 would be absorbed into routine TRANS review and printing.
