Headlamps in inclement weather

Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

The proposal:

The enactment of 2005 AB 98 would require headlamps and other required vehicle lights to be lighted when climatic conditions limit visibility such that objects on the highway are not clearly discernible at 500 feet from the front of the vehicle. Law enforcement officers would have the authority to stop and cite drivers for violating this law (standard enforcement).

Fiscal impacts:

- 1) There would be no additional costs to motorists since all vehicles must be equipped with the headlamps and tail lamps referred to in the proposal.
- 2) Though it is not possible to estimate the number of these violations, it is estimated that there would be no additional costs to law enforcement to enforce this law. Officers would enforce the law during routine traffic enforcement and no additional training beyond being informed of the new violation as a secondary enforcement would be required.
- 3) Though it is not possible to estimate the number of violations to be recorded with this new law, it is estimated that there would be no additional costs to the Division of Motor Vehicles to record these violations. These violations would be categorized the same as other violations that already exist for lighting requirements during hours of darkness.

Long-Range Fiscal Implications
