REL: Commending Chancellor John D. Wiley for his outstanding service to the state of Wisconsin.

4255/1

Whereas, Chancellor John D. Wiley was a graduate student in physics when he first came to the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1964, returning to campus a decade later and embarking on a 30-plus year career as a professor in the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, and serving as Dean of the Graduate School and Provost; and

Whereas, since assuming the role of the university's chief executive officer on January 1, 2001, Wiley has led UW-Madison through a period of major growth in diversity, infrastructure, research funding, access, and service-learning and study-abroad opportunities for students; and

Whereas, as chancellor, Wiley has promoted extraordinary growth and preeminence in the biosciences, planned for the future of interdisciplinary research through the Wisconsin Institutes for Discovery, and helped establish UW-Madison as a major hub for bioenergy research; and

Whereas, Wiley recognized the need to diversify the university's revenues and enthusiastically sought outside funding from a devoted alumni base through efforts in which the university, through its foundation, raised more money during the past six years than during its entire history; and

Whereas, Wiley's fundraising efforts included spearheading the successful $1.5 billion Create the Future capital campaign and millions of dollars in gifts to the university for specific endeavors such as establishing the East Campus Mall and arts corridor, expansion of the Chazen Museum of Art, restoring the School of Education building, and the creation of the Wisconsin Idea Endowment; and

Whereas, Wiley ensured that UW-Madison will remain deeply committed to keeping the doors of higher education wide open to residents of the state and beyond by balancing the competing interests of access, quality, resources and affordability; and

Whereas, Wiley has consistently supported a vision that connects student life and the academic side of the university through the Wisconsin Experience, which includes residential-learning communities, undergraduate research and leadership initiatives, service-learning classes, community-based research and study abroad, as well as volunteerism coordinated by the Morgridge Center for Public Service; now, therefore, be it
