Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill provides that a publisher of instructional material is in violation of the Public Accommodations and Amusement Law if it refuses to provide instructional material in electronic format as required. The Public Accommodations and Amusements Law is enforced by the Department of Workforce Development. The Department does not anticipate that many publishers would refuse to provide instructional material in electronic format if requested by an institution of higher education on behalf of disabled students. Therefore, it does not anticipate that many (if any) complaints would be filed under this law. There would be no fiscal impact on the Department if only one or two complaints were filed each year.
