Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, with limited exceptions, an applicant for an operator's license authorizing operation of "Class D" vehicles, which are automobiles and most passenger vehicles, is required to successfully complete a knowledge test and a driving skills (road) test. Generally, Department of Transportation (DOT) examiners must administer these tests, except: 1) DOT may authorize certain driver education instructors to administer knowledge tests; 2) DOT may contract with third-party testers to conduct road tests for "Class D" vehicle operators, but a third-party tester may not administer a road test for a person who has received instruction in driver training from the third-party tester; 3) DOT may contract with law enforcement agencies to administer knowledge and road tests for "Class D" vehicle operators if no DOT examining station is located in the municipality of the law enforcement agency; and 4) DOT may contract with counties or other local governments to provide certain services, including administering knowledge tests but not road tests.

This bill eliminates DOT's authority to contract with third-party testers and law enforcement agencies as described in items 2) and 3), above, and instead creates a road test certification and waiver procedure. Under this bill, DOT may enter into a contract with any public or private entity permitted to offer courses in driver education or training (driver training school) authorizing the driver training school to certify that an individual who has received instruction in driver education or training from the school (student) is eligible to be exempted from the road test generally required to obtain an operator's license for a "Class D" vehicle. DOT's contract with the driver training school must include standards and eligibility requirements for this certification that ensure that a student who is certified as eligible to be exempted from the road test has demonstrated driving skills equivalent to or exceeding those necessary to successfully complete the road test administered by DOT. In addition, DOT must require the driver training school to have a signed agreement with each student that includes certain information and that advises the student that there is no guarantee the driver training school will provide a certification for the student and that, even if the school provides a certification, DOT may still require the student to take and pass a road test administered by DOT. Under the bill, if DOT receives from a driver training school a certification of eligibility for exemption relating to a student, DOT may waive the road test for that student when the student applies for an operator's license authorizing operation of "Class D" vehicles. A driver training school that certifies a student as eligible to be exempted from the road test administered by DOT is immune from civil liability for bodily injury, death, or property damage arising out of any act or omission relating to the certification.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
