Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This substitute amendment subjects the fences that enclose deer farms to additional requirements, especially if chronic wasting disease (CWD) is confirmed in a farm-raised deer that is kept in captivity on the deer farm. Under the substitute amendment, "farm-raised deer" means any animal of the cervid family, which includes white-tailed deer, non-white-tailed deer, reindeer, elk, and moose, that is kept in captivity. The substitute amendment requires each deer farm to pay a fee for and hold a fence inspection certificate issued by the Department of Natural Resources after DNR inspects the fence enclosing the deer farm and determines that it meets certain requirements. The substitute amendment provides that a fence inspection certificate for a deer farm is valid for two years, except that a fence inspection certificate for a deer farm is valid for one year if CWD has been confirmed in a farm-raised deer kept in captivity on that deer farm. Current law requires that fences enclosing a deer farm meet certain specifications but does not require a fence inspection certificate for a deer farm unless the deer farm keeps at least one white-tailed deer. Under current law, the fence inspection certificates for deer farms keeping white-tailed deer are valid for approximately ten years.

Further, the substitute amendment requires deer farms to install an electronic monitoring system, or other system approved by DNR, on each gate in the perimeter fence enclosing a deer farm. Additionally, under the substitute amendment, if CWD is confirmed in a farm-raised deer, the deer farm must install, within 30 days, either 1) a double-perimeter fence, with each layer of the fence meeting the mandatory specifications; or 2) an electric fence that meets requirements established by DNR by rule.

The substitute amendment requires that if the farm-raised deer kept on a deer farm have been removed because CWD is confirmed at that deer farm, the operator of the deer farm, or the landowner, must maintain the fences enclosing the deer farm until DNR and the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection certify that the deer farm has been free of CWD prions for five years. If a fence fails to meet the specifications under the substitute amendment, DNR must issue an order to the person who is required to maintain the fence to bring it into compliance within ten days. The substitute amendment grants DNR authority to inspect the fence enclosing deer farms containing non-white-tailed deer at any time. DNR has authority under current law to inspect the fences enclosing white-tailed deer farms at any time.
