Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill requires agencies to biennially report on administrative rules that are unauthorized, restricted, obsolete, unnecessary, economically burdensome, or duplicative of, superceded by or in conflict with other rules. The bill also requires agencies to review legislative acts to determine the impact of the legislation on administrative rules and allows the Joint Committee for Review of Administrative Rules (JCRAR) to direct an agency to prepare a retrospective economic analysis of any administrative rules administered by the agency.

The additional workload related to the biennial reporting requirement and review of legislative acts can be absorbed within existing resources. The department cannot accurately estimate the fiscal impact of potential retrospective economic analyses that may be required by the JCRAR.
