2017 ASSEMBLY BILL 335

Under current law, certain named fentanyl analogs that are structurally derived from fentanyl are Schedule I controlled substances under the category of synthetic opiates. 2017 Assembly Bill 335, as passed by the Assembly, adds all fentanyl analogs to the list of Schedule I controlled substances. In doing so, the bill specifies that the following fentanyl analogs are added to the list of Schedule I controlled substances:

- Cyclopentyl fentanyl.
- Isobutyryl fentanyl.
- 4-methoxybutyryl fentanyl.
- Ocfentanil.
- Valeryl fentanyl.

The bill also renames the chemical name for isobutyl fentanyl and ocfentanil using the federal Drug Enforcement Agency's naming system and renumbers the fentanyl analogs currently prohibited as a Schedule I substance so that all fentanyl analogs are listed together as a subcategory of synthetic opiates.

SENATE AMENDMENT 1

Senate Amendment 1 modifies Assembly Bill 335, as passed by the Assembly, to add the following four fentanyl analogues to the list of Schedule I controlled substances:

- Fluorobutyryl fentanyl.

- Methoxyacetyl fentanyl.
- Methylbutyryl fentanyl.
- Tetrahydrofuran fentanyl.
