Under current law, when a person is convicted of a crime, or if a person was charged with a crime but the criminal charge was amended to a civil offense and a court finds that the person committed the civil offense, the person pays a crime victim and witness assistance surcharge. DOJ uses a percentage of the surcharge to provide grants for sexual assault victim services.

This bill specifies that DOJ may use some of the funds it provides as grants for sexual assault victim services to pay the costs of administering the grant program.
