Property Tax Deferral Loan Program

Introduction

The Wisconsin property tax deferral loan program allows low- and moderate-income elderly homeowners and veterans to convert home equity into income to pay property taxes. The program provides cash income to individuals who have little disposable income and a significant amount of home equity. Loans help pay property tax bills, thereby helping owners remain in their homes. In the 2011-12 program year ending June 30, 2012, 38 individuals received a total of $104,000 in loans averaging $2,738.

State statutes specify a homeowner 65 years of age or older, or a qualifying veteran of any age, with total household income of no more than $20,000 may annually apply to the Wisconsin Housing and Economic Development Authority (WHEDA) for a loan equal to the amount of property taxes and special assessments levied on the home. Beginning with loans in 2011, covering the 2010 tax year, a borrower may receive a maximum annual loan of $3,525, which was increased by 2009 Act 199 from the previous maximum of $2,500. Loans may be used to pay all or a portion of current property taxes and special assessments due and may include any interest or penalties on delinquent property taxes. If an applicant has a co-owner, the co-owner must be at least 60 years of age. If a participant is married, the spouse must qualify as a co-owner. However, there is no minimum age requirement for a spouse if the spouse or participant is permanently disabled.

The principal and interest due for tax deferral loans do not have to be repaid until the ownership of the property transfers or the loan recipient no longer lives in the home. Upon transfer of ownership of the property, or the participant ceases to live in the residence, the total loan, with interest, is repaid from the proceeds of the estate or sale of the property. The interest rate on loans in 2013 will be 4.25%, which has been the rate since 2010.

The property tax deferral loan program is funded from WHEDA's surplus fund. State law requires WHEDA to maintain this surplus fund, which consists of any Authority assets in excess of operating costs and required reserves. The Authority is also authorized under statute to use the proceeds of bonds or notes to make property tax deferral loans, although WHEDA has never issued bonds to fund the program.

The following section provides background information on the program. Next, a summary of eligibility requirements and other current provisions of the property tax deferral loan program are presented. A description of the characteristics of 2012 program applicants follows. Appendix I contains a history of the property tax deferral loan program. Appendix II lists the eligibility criteria under the statutes for classification as a veteran, which would qualify a person for participation in the property tax deferral loan program, regardless of age. Appendix III provides a detailed listing of the types of income included as household income under the program.

Background

According to 2010 U.S. Census data, 24% of all households in Wisconsin are headed by individuals 65 years of age and older. Further, approximately 76% of persons 65 or older in Wisconsin live in owner-occupied homes. The property tax deferral loan program was created to assist elderly homeowners who have resided in their homes for a substantial period of time and whose current incomes are insufficient to cover property taxes.

The need for the property tax deferral loan program was based on arguments about the special needs of the elderly. It was argued that many of the major items in the budget of an elderly person, such as energy or health care costs, had increased more rapidly than the general rate of inflation. Thus, even though Social Security benefits were subject to annual adjustments for inflation, such costs as energy and health care had grown more rapidly than the incomes of lower-income elderly. Further, it was argued that financial pressures on low-income elderly persons made it difficult for them to afford the taxes and special assessments levied on their homes, as well as pay for home maintenance and repairs. Information available at the time also indicated that most elderly homeowners either had no mortgage or had substantial equity in their homes. The property tax deferral program was viewed as a way to allow low-income elderly to convert the equity in their homes into increased cash income to pay these taxes and remain in their own homes.

Eligibility Requirements

Statutory Requirements

The eligibility conditions for the property tax deferral loan program that are specified in the statutes are listed below. An applicant must meet all of the conditions to qualify for a loan.

Age or Veteran Status. An applicant must be 65 years of age or older on the date of application. Any co-owner must be at least 60 years of age on the date of application. If married, the applicant's spouse must qualify as a co-owner. However, a spouse can be any age if the spouse or the applicant is permanently disabled.

Provisions in 2011 Act 32 expanded program eligibility to living veterans, as defined in Chapter 45 of the statutes, regardless of age. These qualifications are described in Appendix II. However, WHEDA reports it has not offered property tax deferral loans to veterans who do not otherwise meet the age criterion. The Authority contends the statutory language is not clear, and could be read to limit participation only to persons 65 years of age or older who are also veterans. However, WHEDA officials also report that because the Legislature did not intend the Act 32 provision to limit the program to certain groups of senior citizens, the program has not been implemented to limit eligibility only to persons 65 or older who are also veterans. The Authority reports none of the four loans denied in the 2012 program year, the first program year following the effective date of Act 32, were denied on the basis of a veteran under 65 requesting a loan, nor were any applications received by persons under 65 applying on the basis of veteran status.

Loan Purpose. The loan must be for property taxes and special assessments due on a single-family home, condominium or multi-unit dwelling of four or fewer units in Wisconsin. The applicant may apply for a loan for all or part of the previous year's property taxes and special assessments, payable in that year up to $3,525. Loans under $100 are not made except in situations of special financial hardship. Participants are liable for interest and penalty charges on delinquent taxes, but the principal amount requested may include the amount of these charges. To avoid late penalties, the applicant may pay the property taxes and special assessments and then receive a reimbursement loan from WHEDA upon proof of payment and approval of the loan. If the taxes and assessments have not yet been paid in full, WHEDA makes the loan check co-payable to both the participant and the appropriate municipal treasurer. Taxes and assessments on up to one acre of land surrounding the home may be included.

Residence Requirements. The applicant must have lived in the dwelling unit for at least six months during the preceding year. Temporary residence in a health care facility, such as a nursing home or hospital, may count toward the six-month residency requirement.

Outstanding Obligations. Total outstanding liens, judgments, mortgages and delinquent property taxes may not exceed 33% of the value of the housing unit. WHEDA considers property value to be the lower of either assessed value or the most recent broker price opinion, which is a program requirement discussed later in greater detail. Any previous property tax deferral loans and loans under the housing rehabilitation loan program, also administered by WHEDA, are excluded from this limitation.

Household Income. Applicants' prior year household income may not have exceeded $20,000. The definition of household income used in this program is the same as that used in the homestead tax credit program. Household income is broadly defined to reflect most cash resources available to claimants, and it includes all income that is taxable for Wisconsin income tax purposes plus nontaxable income sources such as Social Security, supplemental security income and pensions. Appendix III provides a complete listing of the income sources included in the definition of household income under this program.

Insurance Coverage. The applicant must have fire and extended casualty insurance policy coverage on the home and permit WHEDA to be named as a lienholder on the policy. If the home is located on a flood plain, flood plain insurance is required and WHEDA must be named as a lienholder on the policy.

Application Deadline. Applications for property tax deferral loans must be filed with WHEDA by June 30 of the year in which the taxes are due. For example, applications filed by June 30, 2012, if approved, would receive loans to pay 2011 property taxes payable in 2012. Receipt of a property tax deferral loan does not affect an applicant's eligibility for farmland preservation or homestead tax credits. WHEDA begins accepting applications approximately each December 1 for property taxes due beginning on the succeeding January 31.

Other Requirements

In addition to the statutory requirements described above, WHEDA has established additional program requirements.

Additional Outstanding Obligation Limit. The amount of outstanding liens and judgments on a dwelling may not exceed 50% of the value of the dwelling, as determined by the lower of assessed value or broker price opinion, including property tax deferral and housing rehabilitation loans. This is in addition to the statutory provision that limits outstanding obligations to 33% of the assessed value of the unit, not including property tax deferral and housing rehabilitation loans.

Application Fees. Since 2006, all applicants must pay a $75 title search fee each year a loan application is submitted. The title search fee is nonrefundable and may not be added to the loan amount. Additionally, WHEDA is requiring a flood hazard determination for all properties beginning with loans for taxes due in 2013. WHEDA reports the determination costs approximately $10 each year, and is necessary to comply with federal lending requirements.

For applications in 2011, WHEDA charged a $30 fee for recording loans with registers of deeds. Beginning in 2012, the $30 recording fee is required only of first-time borrowers, or persons whose previous loans have been paid in full. Recording fees are to be refunded if the loans are denied or otherwise do not close.

Broker Price Opinion. In 2011, WHEDA began requiring an appraisal for the property covered by the loan. Because borrowers' homes serve as collateral on loans, appraisals were intended to ensure homes are in livable conditions and therefore have value as collateral should a loan come due. WHEDA customarily has evaluated applications using homes' assessed values. However, in some past instances, the market values of borrowers' homes have been worth significantly less than assessed values, with some homes later being subject to condemnation. Such an occurrence exposes the Authority to losses, as the statutes automatically make a loan due in full in case of condemnation, but the borrower may not have sufficient assets to pay the loan.

Beginning in 2012, WHEDA replaced the annual appraisal with a required broker price opinion (BPO). The BPO functions as an appraisal, but is a less rigorous review of the property and less costly to the prospective borrower. BPOs are obtained at a typical cost of $140 and are required every other year. As a result, total annual fees for persons continuing in the program are either: (a) $85 for a title search and a flood hazard determination; or (b) approximately $225 per application, if a new BPO is due on the property.

WHEDA reports BPO fees will be refundable if a title search proves an applicant does not meet requirements for outstanding obligations on the property. These fees would not be refundable, however, if a BPO occurred but the loan did not eventually close.

Phone Consultation. First-time borrowers complete a phone consultation to inform them of the loan process, but that typically does not cover other considerations regarding the loan relative to their circumstances. Previously, each applicant was to complete a phone consultation with WHEDA staff prior to loan approval to help ensure the applicant understood his or her obligations under the program. WHEDA reports it no longer counsels every borrower in such a manner, but rather answers participant questions as they are received.

Interest Rates

From the program's inception in 1986 through 1993, the statutes provided that the interest rate to be charged on property tax deferral loans was to be set by the agency administering the program. Under this authority, the interest rate on loans in each year through 1993 was set at 8% and calculated as simple interest.

Subsequently, 1993 Wisconsin Act 16 required that the WHEDA Executive Director set the loan interest rate by October 15 of each year. By law, the rate must be 1% over the prime lending rate established by the Federal Reserve Board at the time the rate is set. This provision was first effective for 1994 loans. For 2013 loans, the interest rate is set at 4.25%.

The statutes do not specify how interest accrues, and through 2011, WHEDA had elected to charge compound interest rather than simple interest on program loans. The Authority has begun charging simple interest with loans issued in 2012 (covering the 2011 tax year). The change is intended to provide more favorable lending terms to borrowers. It should be noted simple interest is only valid for loans issued beginning with 2012. Past loans remaining outstanding continue to accrue compounding interest, per the terms of those loans.

Repayment of the Loan

Upon entering the loan agreement, a lien is attached to the dwelling unit on which the property taxes are paid. The lien is filed with the county register of deeds and allows WHEDA to secure repayment of the principal, interest and fees due on all property tax deferral loans made to the participant. If WHEDA funds loans under the program through the sale of revenue bonds or notes, its right under such liens accrues to the benefit of the holders of the bonds or notes. The lien reduces the equity or ownership value in the home by the loan amounts outstanding, plus interest. The lien remains on the home until WHEDA receives payment in full on all loans and charges.

Repayment of the loan is due under any of the following conditions:

1. Sale or transfer of the home, except upon transfer to a co-owner who resides in the home and is permitted to assume the participant's account.
2. Death of the participant, if the participant is the sole owner, or death of the last surviving eligible co-owner.
3. Condemnation or involuntary conversion of the dwelling unit.
4. At the request of the participant or co-owner.
5. Inability of the participant to continue to comply with all eligibility requirements.
6. Discovery by WHEDA that a participant or co-owner has made a false statement on the application or otherwise in respect to the program.

WHEDA reports repayments mostly occur as a result of property sale or the participant's passing, with earlier repayments being rare. If a participant in the program ceases to meet the eligibility requirements, WHEDA may request full or partial repayment of the loan, or may allow the participant to continue in the program but be ineligible for additional loans.

Revenue received from repayment of property tax deferral loans issued by WHEDA is returned to the Authority's general reserves. As of July 1, 2012, WHEDA has established an encumbrance of $1,685,000 for the program in its general reserves. For loans issued prior to 1994, the portfolio of which was purchased by WHEDA using housing rehabilitation program reserves in 1992, repayment revenue is returned to the housing rehabilitation program reserve.

Factors such as the initial property tax rate, growth in the property tax rate, appreciation in home value and interest rate charged on loans all affect the borrower's level of equity in a home on which a lien is secured. Also, it should be noted that while median home values have generally increased during the program's existence, in many cases the value of an elderly homeowner's property may increase more slowly than average due to its location, or because it may be older and not receiving needed repairs on a timely basis. Therefore, elderly borrowers who receive consecutive property tax deferral loans could lose equity at a faster rate than the population as a whole. Most loans in recent years have customarily gone to repeat participants in the program. WHEDA reports seven first-time borrowers received loans in each of the 2011 and 2012 program years.

Characteristics of Participants

The six tables in this section provide historical data about program activity and program participants, as well as data on participants in the program in the 2012 program year, which began accepting applications December 1, 2011, and ended with applications received through June 30, 2012. It should be noted that while Table 1 reflects 38 loans actually made, Tables 2 to 6 reflect all applicants to the program for 2012, which numbered 42. Four applications requesting total loans of $9,100 did not proceed to closure, due to the applicants either being ineligible or electing not to proceed with a loan.

Table 1 shows the number of participants, total amount of loans received and the average loan amount received for each year since the property tax deferral loan program began in 1986. Since the program's inception, 6,540 loans have been issued for $10.9 million. Further, the annual average loan amount has increased 147% between 1986 and 2012. As of June 30, 2012, WHEDA reports 585 loans were outstanding with total balances of $2,099,400, which includes principal and, for loans with compounding interest, accrued interest.

As Table 2 indicates, half of the 2012 loan applicants were under 80 years of age, and half were 80 or older. The age distribution of loan recipients has generally increased since the program began, which would be consistent with the aging of continuing participants, although the distribution of program applicants' ages, as well as the average applicant age, have stabilized somewhat in recent years. In 1986, 36.2% of loan recipients were under age 70. This percentage was 9.0% as of 2008, 16.0% for 2010 and 14.3% for 2012, as shown below. In contrast, 13.0% of recipients in 1986 were age 80 or older. This percentage was 51.3% of borrowers in 2008, 46.6% of applicants in 2010, and 50.0% of applicants in 2012. The average age reported in 2012 was 79.7 years old, which is comparable to average recipient age of 80 in 2008 and 78.6 in 2012.

Table 3 shows the distribution of reported household income among applicants. Approximately 36% of the applicants reported a household income of no more than $12,000, consistent with the figure for applicants in 2010. The average income reported was $13,902. Average household income for recipients was $10,611 in 1986, when the program began, and $13,868 in 2010.

Table 4 provides information on the number of applications by amount sought, with distributions shown for 2010, the last year under a $2,500 maximum loan, and 2012, the most recent program year. Under the $1,800 loan maximum, the number and percentage of persons receiving the maximum loan increased from 40 participants (13.3% of the total) in 1986 to 206 participants (42.4% of the total) in 1993. Beginning in 1994, the maximum loan amount increased to $2,500. In 2010, 43 applicants, or 57.3%, sought a loan at or within $100 of the maximum amount of $2,500. The maximum loan increased to $3,525 beginning with loans made in 2011, the following program year, which would be used to pay 2010 taxes. In the 2012 program year, 12 applicants, or 28.6% of the total, requested a loan within $125 of the maximum amount, with 11 of these requesting the full maximum amount. Similarly, in the 2011 program year, 13 of 52 applicants, or one-quarter, requested $3,400 or more in property tax deferral loans, with 11 requesting the maximum. WHEDA reports the average request was for a loan of $2,694.

Table 5 shows the distribution of assessed values of applicants' dwelling units. The fair market values of participants' dwelling units ranged from $29,200 to $351,700 in 2008, the last year for which market-value data are available. The average assessed value reported for 2012 was $122,403. Average value of covered properties was $51,812 in 1986 when the program began.

APPENDIX I

History of the Property Tax Deferral Loan Program

Chapter 20, Laws of 1981 (the 1981-83 biennial budget act), authorized the creation of the property tax deferral loan program in the Department of Revenue (DOR). However, the program was not implemented until 1986 due to funding issues. As originally created, the deferred loan program was to be funded through the proceeds of revenue bonds issued by DOR and through revenues received in repayment of loans.

The combination of a federal tax law change (the Mortgage Subsidy Bond Tax Act) and an inability to arrange an acceptable interest rate with conventional bond financing prevented DOR from securing funding for the deferral loan program in 1983. The federal law change was designed to restrict the use of tax-exempt state revenue bonds to finance single-family home purchases. However, the law was written in such a way that tax deferral bonds were technically disqualified from a federal tax exemption. Without the federal exemption, interest earned on bonds issued by the state to fund the deferral loan program would probably have been subject to federal taxation, necessitating a higher interest rate on the deferred property tax loans. In addition, the deferred nature of the loan repayments would have created difficulties in finding interested bond purchasers.

Consequently, the 1985-87 biennial budget (1985 Wisconsin Act 29) created a segregated fund in DOR, funded by a $10 million loan from the general fund, to implement the property tax deferral loan program effective for property taxes levied in 1985 (payable in 1986). In addition, revenues received from a 1985 tax amnesty program were to be deposited in the fund. The general fund loan was to be repaid after 10 years, without interest. Subsequently, 1985 Wisconsin

Act 120 (the 1985-87 budget adjustment bill) repealed the provision directing the deposition of the proceeds from the tax amnesty program into the fund. In addition, Act 120 directed that $7.5 million from the balance in the fund be lapsed to the general fund. These actions left the deferral loan fund with a balance of $2.5 million from the general fund loan.

In the 1987-89 biennial budget (1987 Wisconsin Act 27), the $2.5 million loan from the general fund was forgiven. It was intended that this general fund startup funding plus loan repayments would fund the program for 1987-89 and thereafter.

1991 Wisconsin Act 39 (the biennial budget) required DOR to include information regarding the program in the homestead tax credit application.

In the 1991-93 budget adjustment bill (1991 Wisconsin Act 269), administration of the program transferred from DOR to the Division of Housing in DOA effective July 1, 1992. Act 269 also required that the balance in the program's trust fund ($1,147,047) be transferred to the state's general fund on July 1, 1992. To fund the program, a 1992-93 appropriation of $550,000 GPR was provided for funding new loans and a separate 1992-93 appropriation of $78,800 GPR was authorized for administrative costs of the program. A half-time position that had been funded from the program's trust fund was converted to general fund revenues and transferred to DOA, also effective July 1, 1992. Subsequently, in May 1993, the original appropriation was increased by a one-time supplement of $250,000 GPR from the program supplementation appropriation of the Joint Committee on Finance to meet increased loan demand in the program in that year.

1991 Act 269 also provided that WHEDA purchase, by December 31, 1992, the portfolio of existing property tax deferral loans and that the proceeds of that sale be deposited into the state's general fund. A total of $2,714,832 was provided by WHEDA at the end of December and deposited in the general fund.

Under provisions of 1993 Wisconsin Act 16 (the 1993-95 biennial budget), the property tax deferral loan program was transferred from DOA to WHEDA, effective with the 1993-94 fiscal year. The GPR appropriations, which had been created in 1992-93 to fund new loans and to administer the program, were repealed. Instead, WHEDA was permitted to make loans under the program either from proceeds of the sale of bonds or notes under its general corporate purpose bonding authority, or from WHEDA surplus funds. The Act also required that WHEDA allocate at least a portion of its surplus funds to the property tax deferral program. WHEDA has encumbered $1,685,000 in surplus reserves for the program.

1993 Act 16 also made several modifications to the statutory criteria for the program: (1) eligibility provisions for the program were modified by increasing outstanding lien limits from $5,000 to 33% of the assessed value of the applicant's house; (2) the maximum loan amount was increased from $1,800 to $2,500 annually; (3) loan funds were permitted to be used to pay special assessments, in addition to or in lieu of property taxes; and (4) the interest rate for loans was required to be set at 1% over the prime lending rate established by the Federal Reserve Board at the time the rate is set. Under previous law, the interest rate was set by the agency administering the program.

WHEDA officials indicate that several modifications to the loan application and approval processes in 2006 contributed to the significant decrease in the number of loans in the next several years. WHEDA increased awareness of its use of compound interest rather than simple interest on property tax deferral loans. The Authority also instituted a $75 search fee on titles of all applicants, regardless of a borrower's status as continuing or first-time. Upon searching all titles, WHEDA discovered that a number of participants accumulated obligations such as liens, mortgages or delinquent property taxes that exceeded 33% of their home's value, the limit set for eligibility for property tax deferral loans. WHEDA reports that these circumstances resulted in the Authority both receiving fewer applications and approving fewer loans.

2009 Act 199 increased the maximum annual loan under the program to $3,525. This change took effect for applications pending on the act's effective date of May 6, 2010. The higher limit began applying to loans made in 2011, for 2010 property tax bills.

WHEDA also added a $250 appraisal fee and a $30 one-time recording fee for 2011 applicants. The recording fee applies only when a participant has no outstanding PTDL balances. Further, the annual appraisal has since been modified to a broker price opinion (BPO) with an approximate cost of $140 once every two years. For loans made in 2013 for the 2012 tax year, WHEDA also is adding a flood hazard determination, which would apply each year to all borrowers and would cost approximately $10.

For 2013, the fees required of first-time borrowers would equal approximately $255, or about 7% of the maximum loan possible under the program. This includes a title search fee ($75), a BPO ($140), a flood hazard determination ($10) and a one-time recording fee ($30). Yearly fees for continuing borrowers would be about 6% of the value of a maximum loan for those requiring a BPO, or about 2% for those requiring only a flood hazard determination and a title search.

2011 Act 32 expanded program eligibility to veterans, regardless of age, although the Authority did not administer the program to allow participation by veterans under age 65 in 2012, the first program year since the provision was enacted. The Authority contends the statutory language is not clear, and could be read to limit participation only to persons 65 years of age or older who are also veterans. However, WHEDA officials also report that because the Legislature did not intend the Act 32 provision to limit the program to certain groups of senior citizens, the program has not been implemented to limit eligibility only to persons 65 or older who are also veterans. The Authority reports none of the four loans denied in the 2012 program year, the first program year following the effective date of Act 32, were denied on the basis of a veteran under 65 requesting a loan, nor were any applications received by persons under 65 applying on the basis of veteran status. The Authority indicates there are no plans to admit veterans under age 65 to the program in 2013.
