Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law prohibits certain threats to cause bodily harm to the person or family member of a judge, a witness, or an official, employee, or agent of the Department of Revenue, Department of Commerce, or Department of Workforce Development. A person who violates this prohibition is guilty of a felony and may be fined up to $10,000 or sentenced to a term of imprisonment of up to six years, which if the sentence is for more than one year includes a term of extended supervision, or both.

This bill prohibits certain threats to cause bodily harm to a social service worker employed by or working under contract with a government agency, a juvenile intake worker, or a child support worker. A threat is covered by this prohibition if: 1) the person making the threat knows or should have known that the victim is a social service worker, juvenile intake worker, or child support worker; 2) at the time of the threat, the victim is acting in his or her official capacity or the threat is made in response to any action taken in an official capacity; and 3) the victim did not consent to the threat. A person who violates this prohibition is guilty of a Class A misdemeanor and may be fined not more than $10,000 or sentenced to the county jail for up to nine months or both.

Because this bill creates a new crime or revises a penalty for an existing crime, the Joint Review Committee on Criminal Penalties may be requested to prepare a report concerning the proposed penalty and the costs or savings that are likely to result if the bill is enacted.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
