Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill regulates the use of aversive interventions in schools. The bill defines “school” as a school operated by a school district, a charter school, a private school in which a child with a disability is enrolled following the placement or referral of that child to the private school by a local educational agency, a private school participating in the Milwaukee Parental Choice Program, and a school operated by a county children with disabilities education board. The bill defines “aversive intervention” as deliberate action, including physical restraint, seclusion, and timeout, taken by a school employee to establish a negative association between certain behaviors and the deliberate action. “Physical restraint” is defined in the bill as a restriction imposed by a person that immobilizes or reduces the ability of a pupil to freely move his or her arms, legs, or head. “Timeout” is defined in the bill as a behavioral management technique administered by a school employee that involves the separation of a pupil from his or her class and the placement of the pupil in a timeout room. The bill defines “timeout room” as an enclosed setting or isolated area from which a pupil is capable of leaving. In contrast, “seclusion” is defined in the bill as the placement of a pupil in a setting from which the pupil is incapable of leaving.

SENATE BILL 468

The bill requires each school to designate an employee to serve as a school-based resource person to assist other school employees with the implementation of positive behavioral interventions and supports and to appropriately administer physical restraints and timeout. The bill defines “positive behavioral interventions and supports” as a set of evidence-based practices used to organize teaching and learning environments and experiences for a pupil which facilitate the pupil’s successful self-awareness, self-management, and engagement with others and with the learning process. The bill requires the Department of Public Instruction (department) to establish a training and certification program to be completed before a person may be designated as the school-based resource person.

The bill also requires the department to establish a training program to provide instruction to school employees on the safe, effective, and appropriate use of physical restraint and timeout. The bill defines a “school employee” to include a person who is under a contract with a school. No school employee may use physical restraint or a timeout on a pupil unless the employee has completed the training and obtained certification under the program.

The bill prohibits a school employee from using seclusion on a pupil, using any physical restraint that poses certain identified risks to a pupil, or using any mechanical restraint on a pupil. The bill defines “mechanical restraint” as a device that restricts a pupil’s freedom of movement or normal access to a portion of his or her body and that the pupil cannot easily remove. “Mechanical restraint” does not, however, include a protective or stabilizing device that is prescribed by a health care professional for a child with a disability. The bill also prohibits a school employee from intentionally releasing noxious, toxic, caustic, or otherwise unpleasant substances near a pupil. A school employee may use physical restraint or a timeout on a pupil only if certain requirements, established in the bill, are met.

The bill limits both the circumstances under which physical restraint or a timeout may be used on a pupil and also the period for which physical restraint or a timeout may be used on a pupil. Physical restraint may be used only in the case of an emergency, and only if other less intrusive interventions have failed and the school has provided the parent of the pupil with a description of any physical restraint that might be used. If the pupil is a child with a disability, the individualized education program (IEP) prepared for that child must have a behavioral intervention plan (BIP) and the BIP must authorize the use of physical restraint in order for physical restraint to be used. Unless the school employee obtains permission from the school principal, in the manner provided in the bill, to extend the use of physical restraint, the school employee must stop the use of physical restraint as soon as the purpose for which the physical restraint is used is achieved or within 15 minutes, whichever is sooner.

Except in the case of an emergency, a timeout may be used only if other less intrusive interventions have failed and only if the pupil’s parent has seen the timeout room and consented to the use of a timeout in writing. If the pupil is a child with a disability, the child's IEP must have a BIP and the BIP must authorize the use of timeout in order for timeout to be used. In the case of an emergency, written consent of the pupil's parent is not required for the use of a timeout on a pupil, and, if the pupil is a child with a disability, the child need not have a BIP which authorizes the use of timeout. Unless the school employee obtains permission from the school principal, in the manner provided in the bill, to extend the use of timeout, the school employee must stop the use of timeout as soon as the purpose for which the timeout is used is achieved or within 15 minutes, whichever is sooner.

Before a room may be used as a timeout room, the room must be approved for that use by the school district if the room is located in a school operated by or a charter school established by the school district, or by the state superintendent if the room is located in an independent charter school or in a private school subject to the requirements of the bill. The bill establishes requirements which a proposed timeout room must satisfy in order to be approved for use as a timeout room.

The bill requires a school to orally notify the parent of a pupil on whom physical restraint or, in certain circumstances, a timeout is used as soon as practicable but in no event later than the end of the day in which the physical restraint or timeout is used. The bill requires each school to establish procedures for the review of the use of physical restraint and timeout in the school. The bill also requires each school, annually and upon the request of the department, to submit a written report containing a summary of each use of physical restraint and certain instances in which a timeout is used. The bill establishes procedures for the parent of a pupil, including a pupil who is a child with a disability, to seek a hearing on or file a written complaint regarding the use of physical restraint or a timeout on that pupil. The bill permits the parent to appeal a determination made at a hearing or in response to the written complaint to the state superintendent.

Finally, the bill requires a local educational agency to prepare a BIP for a child with a disability who has not responded to the behavioral approaches specified in the child's IEP or if the child exhibits any of the following behaviors: 1) assaultive or self-injurious behavior; 2) behavior that causes property damage; or 3) behavior that significantly interferes with the implementation of the child's IEP. The BIP must contain certain information derived from a functional behavioral assessment of the child, including a description of the specific behaviors underlying the need for the BIP, strategies to minimize these behaviors, and recommendations for teaching and reinforcing appropriate alternative and adaptive behaviors. A BIP may authorize the use of physical restraint or timeout on the child, but only if the parent consents in writing to the use of physical restraint or a timeout, and only if the use of physical restraint or timeout is consistent with the requirements established in this bill.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

16 individualized education program.

17           (b) A behavioral intervention plan prepared under this subsection shall include
18 all of the following:

19           1. Baseline information about the behaviors of the child that are of a type
20 described in par. (a) 1. to 3. obtained through the functional behavioral assessment
21 conducted under sub. (2).

22           2. Intervention strategies to be used to minimize the occurrence of each
23 behavior identified in subd. 1.

2           and the alternative and adaptive behaviors under subd. 3. The criteria under this
3           subdivision shall measure the frequency, duration, and intensity of each behavior
4           identified under subd. 1.

5           5. A schedule for monitoring and reporting on the implementation and
6           effectiveness of the plan prepared under this subsection. The monitoring required
7           under this subdivision shall identify any indirect or collateral effects of the use of 8           aversive interventions on the child with a disability, including increases in 9           aggressive or escape behaviors, health-related effects, and emotional reactions.

10           (c) A behavioral intervention plan may authorize the use of physical restraint
11           or timeout on a child with a disability consistent with the requirements under s.
12           118.305 if the child's parent consents in writing as provided under this paragraph.

8 5. Subjects the pupil to ridicule, humiliation, or emotional trauma.

9 (d) No school employee may use physical restraint or timeout to punish a pupil,
10 for the convenience of the employee or another school employee, or because there is

- 12          a. How to identify an emergency that may indicate the need for the use of 13 physical restraint.
14          b. Methods for evaluating the risk of harm in specific situations in order to

5 physical restraint on any pupil, the school principal or his or her designee shall
6 provide the pupil's parent with a description of any physical restraint that might be 7 used.

8 2. The use of physical restraint shall require the presence of at least 2 school
9 employees certified under sub. (4) (c).

10 (b) A school employee certified under sub. (4) (c) may, after reviewing and
11 considering any known medical, developmental, or psychological limitations of a
12 child with a disability, use physical restraint on that child in an emergency if both
13 of the following apply:

14 1. Other less intrusive interventions, including positive behavioral 15 interventions and supports, constructive, non-physical deescalation, and 16 restructuring of the child's school environment, have failed or been deemed 17 inappropriate.

18 2. The individualized education program of the child includes a behavioral 19 intervention plan that permits the use of physical restraint and the child's parent has 20 consented in writing to the use of physical restraint in the circumstances under 21 which physical restraint is proposed to be used.

22 (c) A school employee certified under sub. (4) (c) may, after reviewing and
23 considering any known medical, developmental, or psychological limitations of a
