Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, no one may knowingly and for valuable consideration acquire, receive or otherwise transfer a human organ for use in human organ transplantation. A “human organ” is defined to mean a human kidney, liver, heart, lung, pancreas, bone marrow, cornea, eye, bone or skin or any other human organ specified by the department of health and family services by rule. “Valuable consideration” is defined to not include reasonable payment associated with the removal, transportation, implantation, processing, preservation, quality control or storage of a human organ or expenses incurred by a human organ donor in connection with donation of the human organ.

This bill expands laws prohibiting the sale or purchase of human organs for use in human organ transplantation to prohibit any sale or purchase of human body parts. The bill defines “human body part”, for purposes of this prohibition, to be a cell, tissue, organ or other part of a human being after fertilization (for example, fetal tissue) and excludes from the definition the blood, ova and semen of a human being after 18 years of age and hair. Further, the bill changes the exclusion from the definition of “valuable consideration” so that the prohibition against the sale or purchase of human body parts does not apply when the “valuable consideration” involves reasonable payment associated with a human body part that is donated for transplantation, other than the human body part of a human being who is aborted by an induced abortion before being born alive, or reasonable payment associated with a human body part that is donated for medical or scientific research, other than the human body part of a human being who is aborted by an induced abortion before being born alive.
