Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a court assigned to exercise jurisdiction under the Juvenile Justice Code (juvenile court) may impose certain dispositions on a juvenile who has been adjudicated delinquent, found to have committed a civil law or ordinance violation, or found to be in need of protection or services. Dispositions permitted under current law include placement under supervision, performance of community service work, and participation in certain educational programming ordered by the juvenile court. Current law also permits the juvenile court to impose certain sanctions on a juvenile who has violated a condition of his or her dispositional order. Sanctions permitted under current law include placement in secure or nonsecure custody for not more than ten days, suspension of the juvenile's operating privilege (driver's license) for not more than three years or, in the case of a juvenile who is truant or habitually truant from school, one year, performance of not more than 25 hours of community service work, and home detention for not more than 30 days. In addition, current law permits a juvenile and the juvenile court intake worker, prior to the filing of a juvenile court petition, to enter into a deferred prosecution agreement under which the juvenile agrees to abide by certain obligations, such as supervision, curfews, and school attendance requirements, as will tend to ensure the juvenile's rehabilitation. Similarly, current law permits a juvenile and a judge or commissioner of the juvenile court, after the filing of a juvenile court petition, but before the entry of judgment, to enter into a consent decree under which the juvenile is placed under supervision in the juvenile's home or present placement subject to certain terms and conditions established by the juvenile court.

This bill permits a juvenile court to impose as a disposition for a juvenile who has been adjudicated delinquent, found to have committed a civil law or ordinance violation, or found to be in need of protection or services, and as a sanction for a juvenile who has violated a condition of his or her dispositional order, an order requiring the juvenile to report to a youth report center after school, in the evening, on weekends, on other nonschool days, or at any other time that the juvenile is not under immediate adult supervision, for participation in the social, behavioral, academic, community service, and other programming of the center. The bill also permits reporting to a youth report center and participation in the center's programming to be included as an obligation under a deferred prosecution agreement or as a condition of a consent decree.
