1 AN ACT to amend 767.02 (1) (c) and 767.13 (5) (a); and to create 767.105 of the 2 statutes; relating to: creating a joint simplified divorce procedure.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law specifies the requirements and procedures for obtaining a divorce and the guidelines and requirements for judges to follow in adjudicating the issues involved in divorce actions. Because many divorce situations may be very complicated in nature (especially if minor children or unusual property arrangements are involved), and because parties to a divorce do not always agree on how to resolve the issues that may be present in the divorce action, most parties to a divorce action require the services of an attorney, although there is no legal requirement that a party be represented by an attorney. Current law does allow for parties who agree on any or all of the issues involved in their divorce, such as property division, child support, maintenance payments, and legal custody and physical placement of minor children, to stipulate to the resolution of those issues. Such a stipulation is subject to court approval.

This bill creates a joint simplified divorce action, which is intended to enable parties to a divorce who fulfill certain criteria to represent themselves in the divorce. (There is no requirement, however, that a party not be represented by an attorney.) Married persons may jointly initiate a joint simplified divorce action if they agree that the marriage is irretrievably broken, they have been married for five years or less, no children were born to or adopted by them, neither one owns real property, the fair market value of their assets is less than $20,000, and their combined annual gross income is less than $40,000. The parties must use forms provided by the clerk of circuit court for the action and must file, along with the petition and financial disclosure statements, a written agreement that divides all of their assets and liabilities between them. A judge or family court commissioner may hear the matter and must grant a judgment of divorce if the parties fulfill the specified criteria for initiating an action. Unless the agreement is inequitable to one of the parties, the court or family court commissioner must incorporate into the judgment the terms of the parties' agreement on dividing their assets and liabilities. A joint simplified divorce judgment may not be appealed. The bill requires the clerk of court to provide, to any person who requests, a brochure with information about a joint simplified divorce action.
