Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, regional emergency response teams have been established to respond to "Level A" releases in their area. A "Level A" release is a release of a hazardous substance that necessitates the highest level of protective equipment for the skin and respiratory systems of emergency response personnel. Currently, local emergency response teams are required to respond to "Level B" releases. A "Level B" release is a release of a hazardous substance that necessitates the highest level of protective equipment for the respiratory systems of emergency response personnel but less skin protection than a "Level A" release.

The division of emergency management in the department of military affairs oversees the state requirements under the federal laws regarding responses to releases of hazardous substances. As part of that responsibility, the division of emergency management promulgates rules regarding the duties of the local and regional emergency response teams and the governmental units that employ those teams. The division provides grants to those governmental units for duties related to emergency response teams and reimburses them for unreimbursed costs that are incurred in responding to a release. Included in those duties is the requirement that the emergency response team make a good faith effort to identify the person who is responsible for the hazardous substance release and to determine if that person is financially able to reimburse the team for expenses incurred in responding to the release. Currently, a person who is financially able to reimburse the team for expenses incurred in responding to the release is required to reimburse those expenses.

This bill requires the division of emergency management to promulgates rules requiring the regional and local emergency response teams to establish procedures that the teams will follow to determine if an emergency that requires a team's response exists as the result of a release or potential release of a hazardous substance. The bill requires the division of emergency management to reimburse regional and local emergency response teams for unreimbursed costs incurred in responding to an emergency resulting from a potential release if the team has established the procedures to determine if an emergency exists. Under the bill, a person who is financially able to reimburse a team for expenses incurred in responding to an emergency resulting from a potential release is required to reimburse those expenses if the team has established the procedures to determine if an emergency exists.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
