Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

In criminal cases, current law permits the review of an order denying a motion to suppress evidence or a motion challenging admissibility of a defendant's statement as part of an appeal from a conviction, notwithstanding the fact that the judgment of conviction was entered on a guilty plea. This bill permits review of an order denying a motion to suppress evidence or a motion challenging admissibility of the statement of a child, an expectant mother, or a parent as part of an appeal from a final judgment or order, notwithstanding the fact that the final judgment or order was entered on an admission, consent, or no contest plea to allegations in a petition filed in cases involving children in need of protection or services or a petition to terminate parental rights. This bill also permits the review of orders denying a motion to suppress evidence or a motion challenging admissibility of the statement of a juvenile upon review from a final judgment or order, notwithstanding the fact that the final judgment or order was entered upon a plea of no contest or an admission to the allegations of a petition filed in cases involving juveniles alleged to be delinquent.

Current law requires that a person seeking Supreme Court review of an adverse court of appeals decision file a petition for review within 30 days of the court of appeals decision. Current law also provides a procedure for seeking reconsideration of a court of appeals decision, but does not toll the time to file a petition for review while the motion for reconsideration is pending. This bill tolls the time for filing a petition for review while a motion for reconsideration is pending in the court of appeals, and establishes revised time limits for filing a petition for review or supplemental petition for review, and the opposing party's responses, after the court of appeals decides the motion for reconsideration.

Current law establishes the appellate procedures applicable to various types of cases. Under current law, appeals in criminal cases and cases involving children, juveniles alleged to be delinquent, protective services, or persons subject to commitment due to mental health or drug abuse are directed by statutory cross-reference to follow a set of appeal procedures. Under current law, appeals in cases involving the commitment of sexually violent persons follow a different set of appeal procedures. This bill establishes one integrated appeal procedure for appeals in felony and misdemeanor cases, cases involving children, juveniles alleged to be delinquent, protective services, or persons subject to commitment due to mental health or drug abuse, the commitment of sexually violent persons, as well as proceedings related to the commitment of persons found not guilty by reason of mental defect. This bill also creates a procedure for seeking postdisposition relief in cases involving the commitment of sexually violent persons.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
