Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law requires public colleges and universities, including technical colleges, to allow a student who is forced to withdraw from school after September 11, 2001, because he or she is called into active military service to reimburse the student for tuition, fees, and prorated room and board or to grant the student an incomplete and allow the student to complete the courses within six months of leaving service without paying additional tuition or fees. Current law requires a private college or university to grant such a student an incomplete and allow the student to complete the courses within six months of leaving service, without paying additional tuition or fees, but does not give a private college or university the option of reimbursing tuition, fees, and prorated room and board instead of granting an incomplete and permitting the student to complete the course.

This bill requires the colleges and universities, in addition to the protections described above, to reenroll the student beginning in the semester following his or her military discharge or the next succeeding semester, whichever the student prefers.
