CHAPTER 216.

[Published April 8, 1862.]

AN ACT to provide for the payment of [the] joint select committee on taxation.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows :

SECTION 1. The joint select committee, appointed under senate joint resolution number thirty-seven, to consider the subject of taxation, is hereby authorized to sit during the recess of the present legislature, at such places as may suit the convenience of said committee; and each member of said committee shall be paid the sum of two dollars and fifty cents per diem, for each day devoted by such member to the business [business] of the committee, during the recess.

SECTION 2. Every member of such committee may present to the secretary of state his account, certified to by him, for the per diem allowance due him at the time of presentation, as herein provided; and it shall be the duty of the secretary of state to audit such account and draw his warrant therefor on the state treasurer.
