

In case of refusal of attorney general, who may bring action.

Court may require security for costs.

case of public interest and also in every other case in which satisfactory security shall be given to indemnify the people of this state against the costs and expenses to be incurred thereby, and in case the attorney general, on application to bring the same, shall refuse so to do, leave to bring such action by a private party, as aforesaid, shall be granted only on notice to the attorney general and the proposed defendant therein, which officer may be heard thereto, and the court on granting the same may require the prosecution to give adequate security to the state to indemnify it and the defendant against all taxable costs therein.

SECTION 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 12, 1874.

CHAPTER 284.

[Published March 26, 1874.]

AN ACT to provide for the removal of criminal action from the justice of peace in this state.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

In cases of bastardy, suits may be removed to next nearest justice.

SECTION 1. In any action hereafter commenced before any justice of the peace in this state, under the provisions of chapter one hundred and seventy-five of the revised statutes, entitled "of proceedings to prevent the commission of crime," and the several acts amendatory thereof, or under the provisions of chapter thirty-seven of the revised statutes, entitled "of bastards," and the several acts amendatory thereof, the defendant therein shall be entitled to a removal of said actions from said justice of the peace to the next nearest justice of the peace, for the same causes and in the same manner as is now allowed defendants by section one of chapter one hundred and eight of the general laws of 1859.

SECTION 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

Approved March 12, 1874.