ASSEMBLY BILL 156

To determine the number of previous OWI offenses under current law, the court counts the number of convictions during the person's lifetime of OWI-related offenses that resulted in injury or death plus the number of suspensions, revocations, and convictions for violations related to OWI, except that for second offenses, only the number of suspensions, revocations, and convictions related to OWI violations within any 10-year period are counted. Under the bill, the court counts the number of convictions during the person's lifetime of OWI-related offenses that resulted in injury or death plus the number of suspensions, revocations and other convictions of violations related to OWI within the 10 years immediately preceding the current violation.

Under current law, a county may seek reimbursement from a person who was confined to the county jail for the actual per-day cost of maintaining the person in the jail, for the cost of investigating the person's financial status, and for other county expenses related to collecting the reimbursement. Under this bill, if the county decides to seek reimbursement from a person who was confined in the county jail as the result of an OWI-related violation, the Department of Transportation (DOT) may not reinstate the violator's operating privilege until the county notifies DOT that the person has reimbursed the county or that the county is no longer seeking reimbursement from the person.

For further information see the state and local fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:
