5 removal of the child from the person's home; and placement of a child for 6 adoption with a foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical
7 custodian of the child.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference BureauINTRODUCTION

This bill makes various changes relating to disclosure of the identity of a foster parent or treatment foster parent of a child; the rights of a foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian of a child on removal of the child from the person's home, whether that removal is through a change in placement or an agency decision or order; and placement of a child for adoption with a foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian of the child.

DISCLOSURE OF IDENTITY

Under current law, a dispositional order of the court assigned to exercise jurisdiction under the Children's Code (juvenile court) that places a child outside the home must include the name of the place or facility where the child shall be cared for, except that the juvenile court may order the name and address of a foster parent or treatment foster parent to be withheld from a child's parent or guardian if the juvenile court finds that disclosure of that information would result in imminent danger to the child, the foster parent, or the treatment foster parent.

This bill provides that the name, other than the first name, and address of a person licensed to operate a foster home or treatment foster home may not be disclosed to the parent or guardian of a child placed in the home or to any other adult relative of the child without the written consent of the licensee.

RIGHTS ON REMOVAL OF CHILD

Change in placement. Under current law, a child who is subject to a dispositional order of the juvenile court, the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian, or any agency bound by the dispositional order may request a change in placement of the child. Currently, if the agency requests the change in placement, the agency must provide notice to the child, the child's parent, guardian, and legal custodian, and the child's foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian stating the reasons for the change in placement, why the new placement is preferable to the current placement, and how the new placement satisfies the objectives of the child's treatment plan. A person who receives notice of such a change in placement may obtain a hearing on the change in placement by filing an objection to the change in placement.

Current law provides a slightly different procedure for when the child or the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian requests a change in placement. In that case, the notice must state what new information affects the advisability of the current placement and a hearing must be held unless all parties waive their objections to the change in placement.

Under either procedure, if a hearing is held and the change in placement would remove the child from a foster home or treatment foster home or from the home of another physical custodian, the juvenile court must give the foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian the right to be heard by permitting that person to make a written or oral statement at the hearing or to submit a written statement prior to the hearing relating to the child and to the change in placement.

This bill expands the rights of a foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian in connection with a change in placement proceeding. Specifically, the bill provides that, if a hearing is held and the change in placement would remove the child from a foster home or treatment foster home or from the home of another physical custodian in which the child has been placed for six months or more, the foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian shall become a party to the proceeding and, as a party, shall have the right to be represented by counsel, to inspect and copy, through counsel, all records relating to the child, to request that the child be examined or assessed by an expert of the foster parent's, treatment foster parent's, or other physical custodian's own choosing, to present evidence, including expert testimony, to confront and cross-examine witnesses, and to present alternative placement recommendations. The bill also requires the juvenile court, in such a proceeding, to consider as paramount the best interests of the child in determining whether to continue placement of the child in his or her current placement or to change the child's placement to the proposed change in placement.

The bill also changes the standard for a change in placement requested by an agency by eliminating the requirement that the request show why the new placement is preferable to the current placement and instead requiring the request to show why the new placement would be in the best interests of the child. In addition, the bill changes the standard for a change in placement requested by the child or the child's parent, guardian, or legal custodian by eliminating the requirement that the request state what new information is available that affects the advisability of the current placement and instead requiring the request to state what information, new or old, is available that affects the advisability of the current placement and why the new placement would be in the best interests of the child.

Agency decision or order. Under current law, if a child has been placed in a foster home, treatment foster home, or group home or in the home of a relative other than a parent for six months or longer, the Department of Children and Families (DCF), the county department of human services or social services (county department), or licensed child welfare agency (collectively, "agency") that placed the child must give the head of the home written notice of intent to remove the child from the home, stating the reasons for the removal. In those cases, the child may not be removed from the home before completion of a hearing before DCF or the circuit court to review the removal decision, if a hearing has been requested, or 30 days after receipt of the notice of intent to remove, whichever is later, unless the safety of the child requires removal.

Also, under current law, any decision or order issued by an agency that affects the head of a foster home, treatment foster home, or group home, the head of the home of a relative other than a parent in which a child is placed, or the child involved may be appealed to DCF under fair hearing procedures. Under those procedures, the head of the home is entitled to be represented by counsel, to examine documents and records, to bring witnesses, to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses, and to have judicial review of DCF's decision.

In addition, under current law, an interested party may file a petition with the circuit court for the county where a child is placed alleging that a decision or order of the agency supervising the child's placement is not in the best interests of the child. On receipt of a petition, the circuit court may call a hearing for the purpose of reviewing the decision or order. If the child is placed in a foster home or in the home of a relative other than a parent, the foster parent or relative may present relevant evidence at the hearing.

This bill makes the rights of the head of a foster home, treatment foster home, group home, or home of a relative other than a parent in connection with an appeal of an agency decision or order removing a child from the person's home consistent with the rights of a foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian in connection with a change in placement proceeding. Specifically, the bill provides that, if the head of a foster home, treatment foster home, group home, or home of a relative other than a parent in which a child has been placed for six months or more appeals an agency decision affecting the head of the home to DCF or files a petition with the circuit court requesting the circuit court to review the agency decision or order, the head of the home is a party to the proceeding and, as a party, has the right to be represented by counsel, to inspect and copy, through counsel, all records relating to the child, to request that the child be examined or assessed by an expert of his or her own choosing, to present evidence, including expert testimony, to confront and cross-examine witnesses, and to present alternative placement recommendations.

PLACEMENT OF CHILD FOR ADOPTION

Current law requires an agency, before placing a child for adoption, to consider the availability of a placement for adoption with a relative of the child. This bill requires an agency, before placing for adoption a child who has been placed in the home of a foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian for six months or more, to first consider the availability of a placement for adoption with that foster parent, treatment foster parent, or other physical custodian before considering the availability of a placement for adoption with a relative.
