Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law requires the Department of Public Instruction (DPI) to develop a model school policy on bullying by pupils and requires each school board to adopt a policy prohibiting bullying. A school board may adopt DPI's model policy. The model policy must include certain elements. For example, it must define bullying; identify the property owned, leased, or used by the school district on which the policy applies; and require that school district officials and employees report incidents of bullying.

This bill requires that the definition of bullying in DPI's model policy include bullying by electronic means. The bill also requires that the model policy include a requirement that a school district official who has reasonable cause to suspect that a bullying incident is a violation of a criminal law report the incident to a law enforcement agency. Finally, the bill requires the model policy to address appropriate responses to bullying that occurs off school grounds in certain circumstances.

Current law prohibits a person from sending an e-mail message to another person if that message threatens to harm any person or property and if the sender intends to frighten, intimidate, threaten, abuse, or harass any person. A person who violates the prohibition is guilty of a Class B misdemeanor and is subject to a maximum fine of $1,000 or imprisonment of not more than 90 days, or both. This bill prohibits a person from posting an electronic message where others can view it if that message threatens to harm any specified person under the age of 18 or person in high school or the property of such a specified person if the person who posts the message knows that the specified person has been previously subject to at least two similar acts. A person who violates this new prohibition is guilty of a Class B misdemeanor.

Current law also prohibits a person from sending an e-mail message to another person if that message uses any obscene, lewd, or profane language or suggests any lewd or lascivious act and if the sender intends to harass, annoy, or offend another person. A person who violates the prohibition is subject to a forfeiture of up to $1,000. This bill prohibits a person from posting an electronic message where others can view it if that message uses any obscene, lewd, or profane language or suggests any lewd or lascivious act if the message is aimed at a specified person under the age of 18 or person in high school and the person who posts the message knows that the specified person has been previously subject to at least two similar acts. A person who violates this new prohibition is subject to a forfeiture of up to $1,000.
