

CHAPTER 136.

[Published April 6, 1872.]

AN ACT to amend chapter one hundred and thirty-seven of the general laws of 1870, entitled "an act to provide for the survey of the lead district, making maps and collecting statistics and specimens from the same."

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Amended.

Shall include maps, etc. and may extend survey.

SECTION 1. Section one (1) of chapter one hundred and thirty-seven (137) of the general laws of 1870, is hereby amended by adding to said section the following proviso: "provided, that the survey of said lead region, including the maps, facts and statistics prepared by Prof. J. D. Whitney, shall be taken into account by the commissioner under this act; and provided, further, that the survey herein provided for may be extended with the consent of the governor, and under his direction and that of the commissioner, along the line of mineral formations running in a northerly direction to the intersection of the Penoka or other iron ranges; and provided further, that said survey shall not be limited to the ores of lead and zinc, but may include all mineral deposits of an ironomic value found in the vicinity of said line of survey, or of the several iron and copper ranges in the north part of this state."

SECTION 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved March 25, 1872.
