JOURNAL OF THE SENATE (March 12, 1974)

The State of Wisconsin
Department of Justice
Madison

The Honorable, The Senate
State Capitol
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Senators:

You have requested my opinion on the constitutionality of Wisconsin's contracting with Amtrak for additional train service, with special reference to Art. VII, sec. 10, and other provisions of the State Constitution. I regret that I cannot render an opinion on such a broad proposition.

Section 165.015, Stats., provides:

"Duties. The attorney general shall:

"(1)...Give his opinion in writing, when required,...upon all questions of law submitted to him by the legislature, either branch thereof..."

However, "...such questions should relate to an existing state of facts, as the attorney general will not ordinarily answer hypothetical questions..." 39 OAG 41, 42 (1950). Hypothetical questions do not generally focus issues sharply enough to permit precise legal analysis. They can result in a waste of resources in that time must be spent attempting to foresee all of the possible factual situations which could follow from the hypothetical problem. All consequences cannot be foreseen, however, and few ever materialize. Therefore, efficiency and good judgment require that an attorney general, or any other attorney, answer only precisely framed questions.

The question posed in Senate Resolution 31 is too general to admit of a reliable answer. To analyze the legal implications of a contract of the sort suggested by the question, it is necessary to examine the actual contract, or at least be fully apprised of its intent and contemplated provisions. Unless the terms are known, it is impossible to determine whether a contract is constitutional or not.

JOURNAL OF THE SENATE (March 12, 1974)

It would be a disservice to the Senate and people of Wisconsin for me to render an opinion on the constitutionality of the state contracting with Amtrak for additional train service without first examining a proposed contract or being informed of the intent and contemplated provisions of such an agreement. Accordingly, I must respectfully decline to do so.

Sincerely yours,
ROBERT W. WARREN
Attorney General

CAPTION:

The attorney general cannot render an opinion on the constitutionality of the state contracting with Amtrak for additional train service without examining a proposed contract or being informed of the intent and contemplated provisions of such an agreement.
