RULING OF THE CHAIR

On Thursday, April 7, 1977, Senator Sensenbrenner raised the point of order that Senate Bill 55 was not "banking legislation" and therefore would not require 22 affirmative votes for passage. The chair took the point of order under advisement.

Senate Bill 55 adds a new paragraph to s.138.05, commonly known as the state's usury law. Specifically, Senate Bill 55 exempts all loans of $100,000 or more from the maximum interest rate, prepayment and loan disclosure requirements found in s.138.05.

It is important to emphasize that the statutory change proposed in Senate 55 relates exclusively to s.138.05 . . . the usury law. Senate Bill 55 makes no reference to ss.220-224 which relates specifically to banking.

JOURNAL OF THE SENATE [April 14, 1977]

Since early statehood Wisconsin courts, the Attorney General and the Legislature have drawn a clear distinction between usury laws and banking legislation. The enactment or amendment of general usury laws has never required a two-thirds affirmative vote. Rock River Bank v. Sherwood, 10 Wis. 174, (1860); Brower v. Haight, 18 Wis. 102, (1864).

A concise summary of judicial case law on the subject of what does and what does not constitute banking legislation is found in the opinion of the Attorney General in 20 O.A.G. 1127 (1931):

"The gist of the (Supreme Court) decisions is that the constitutional requirement applies to substantive changes in the laws governing the creation of banks and the regulation and supervision of the banking business. General laws applying to banks as well as others which do not materially affect the creation of banks and regulation and supervision of the banking business do not require a two-thirds vote."

A point of order very similar to the one presently in question can be found in the Senate Journal of July 6, 1976, page 1599. There the president of the Senate ruled that Senate Bill 534, which established a maximum interest rate for loans under $5,000, did not require a two-thirds vote because:

1. The bill affected that section of state statute which contained the state's usury law, not those sections which related specifically to banks.
2. The bill is a general restriction which applies to banks only as part of a larger group and such proposals are not banking legislation.
3. Sec. 4, art. XI must be strictly construed in the interests of effective legislation.

A detailed explanation of what constitutes "banking legislation" and a detailed history of precedent on the subject can be found in the Assembly Journal of February 22, 1972, page 3743. The chair ruled that Assembly Bill 1057, a comprehensive consumer credit act, did not require a two-thirds vote because it constituted "a general scheme" of consumer credit regulations which will apply to banks merely as one class of creditors coming thereunder. In no sense is it specifically designed for, or aimed at, banks in particular. . . The chair also ruled that, "the extension of consumer credit is not exclusively a banking function and therefore the bill does not constitute banking legislation."

JOURNAL OF THE SENATE [April 14, 1977]

The most recent ruling on the subject is found in the Senate Journal of September 18, 1975 on page 1332. Here the president pro tem of the Senate ruled that Senate Bill 527, which made several changes in s.138.09 relative to installment loans under the precomputed loan law, did not require a two-thirds vote. The chair based this ruling on 27 O.A.G. 839 (1938) which said that a law can apply to banks without relating to banks and banking (emphasis added) within the meaning prescribed by sec. 4, art. XI of the constitution.

Precedent relative to the pending point of order is clear and unambiguous. The amendment or enactment of usury law is not "banking legislation" in the context of sec. 4, art. XI and does not require a two-thirds affirmative vote. Therefore the chair holds the point of order raised by Senator Sensenbrenner well taken.

Sincerely,
FRED A. RISSER
President pro tempore
