Donald Schneider
Senate Chief Clerk
State Capitol
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Mr. Schneider:

Attached is the report on the scope and future costs of the Old World Wisconsin outdoor museum required by Chapter 418, Section 923 (21)(a), 1977 Laws of Wisconsin.

Sincerely,

RICHARD A. ERNEY

Director

A copy of this report can be found in Room 140 South.

CALENDAR OF JANUARY 30

Senate Joint Resolution 1

To amend sections 1m and 1n of article V and sections 1m, 1n and 1p of article VI of the constitution so as in effect to repeal said sections; and to amend section 9 of article IV, sections 1, 7 and 8 of article V, section 1 of article VI and section 10 of article XIII of the constitution, relating to gubernatorial succession (2nd consideration).

Read a second time.

The question was: Shall the bill be ordered to a third reading?

By request of Senator Bablitch, with unanimous consent, Senate Joint Resolution 1 was placed at the foot of today's calendar.

Senate Bill 15

Relating to public membership on the legislative council mining committee at the discretion of the legislative council.

Read a second time.

Senate amendment 1 to Senate Bill 15 offered by Senators Risser, Radosevich, Krueger, Bablitch, Flynn and Murphy.

The question was: Adoption of senate amendment 1?

Adopted.

Ordered to a third reading.

By request of Senator Bablitch, with unanimous consent, the bill was considered for final action at this time.

Senate Bill 15

Read a third time and passed.

By request of Senator Chilsen, with unanimous consent, Senate Bill 37 was returned to the author.

By request of Senator Bablitch, with unanimous consent, the chair was directed to appoint an escort to await upon the Governor.

The chair appointed Senators Flynn, Maurer and Murphy to await upon the Governor.

The senate proceeded in a body to the Assembly Chamber to meet in Joint Convention to receive State of the State message.

IN ASSEMBLY CHAMBER IN JOINT CONVENTION

The Lieutenant Governor in the chair.

The committee to await upon the Governor appeared with his excellency the Governor, who delivered his message as follows:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Legislature:

After 30 days in office, it is my duty to provide you with an assessment of the state of the State of Wisconsin. In short, a health condition report. And, while 30 days is not much time for a complete checkup, there are some advantages, I suppose, to viewing with new eyes and ears and a new viewpoint. So, let me give you that health condition report in six key areas as I see them -- our humanistic health as a state, our environmental health, our economic health, our educational health, our public safety health, and our governmental health. This is not going to be a litany of evils, failures and despair. We have so much of that abroad today. The gloom and doom predictions -- you've heard them all time and time again. Not even a cataloging of the current overwhelming problems by those purveyors of petty accuracy who abound everywhere. Not at all. Wisconsin is a good place to live on this earth, and in almost 131 years an incredible record of growth, vitality, progress and achievement has been made. But we -- you and I -- are currently the stewards of this piece of turf and the people who live thereon. We are obligated to that past 131 years, but I think we can take the best thrust from the word on the flag of the State of Wisconsin itself -Forward. And, now, to look at the last two decades of the 20th century. And, I hope that on New Year's eve, 2000, at age 73, if God grants me the privilege to be available that evening, I hope to look back with you and say we charted a good course. And, therefore, the changes proposed, the problems catalogued now are only intended to guide you in helping you chart a course and to help me chart a course, not to point out deficiencies.

I will look for the legislature to initiate in these areas. Where you do not act or consider, initiatives will come from the Executive.

So, what is the state of our humanistic health? There are several measures of that. One, obviously, is the elderly. I think this state has moved toward meaningful life for aging citizens. The goal has got to be -- not only a meaningful life, but assurance of a life with independence and dignity. Those two qualities ought to be intact at the end of every American's life, as well as during the course of his vitality. We will concentrate and we have concentrated on tax relief for the elderly -- and we should. Mass transportation in urban areas provide those who become immobile with mobility. Senior citizen centers -- not centers intended as a place to corral or herd the elderly for social control -- but, rather a place of social contact, because I am sure many of you, like me, are aware that on any given day, including yesterday, there were tens of thousands of elderly who did not touch any other human being nor were they touched by any other human being. We can do something about that -- we are doing something about it. Nutrition for the elderly; there is a growing awareness of this problem; let us solve it.

Another measure of our health is how a society deals with its children. There is shocking data on abuse of children almost daily, and it is clear now that children need even stronger legislative protection from abuse -- and by that I mean abuse by anyone, including parents. Their education I will deal with shortly.

Another measure of our health would be how our society deals with its minorities, and in this area I believe a time for awareness is past -- long past. How much more effort do we need to put into commissions and studies and education and research? It is a time for action to allow these people access to power. Government itself must set the example, and I will be urging, looking for, and measuring affirmative action results. I understand how difficult that will be for us all during a period of employment constraint. But, I tell you, it is not impossible. I have talked to all of the Secretaries in the cabinet. As they reach out to make their decisions and selections I have urged them to select not on experience and past record as the key criterion. I understand the logic of that approach, but if society continues to do that, then too many women and minorities will be screened out. We need to take the risk on pure talent, and as opportunities present themselves in this administration, that will be our approach. We are building a talent bank of currently available people in those categories. I urge you in the legislature to avail yourselves of that bank as positions open up in the legislature for staff appointment.

Look as well to the strengthening of laws against crime against women; particularly will you see to it that in Wisconsin the marital bond or contract may not be a shield behind which abuse and assault may be carried out with impunity. This is a measure of a humanistic society.

But, the key issue in this category is the rights and the status of the existing unborn -- possibly the most divisive and destructive issue of our time. We are, as I see it on this issue, a nation heading toward calamity and fraction. There is a clear conflict of fundamental principle here with those who perceive the unborn life -- no matter how embryonic -- as sacred, and they cannot cope with compromise or tolerate any unnecessary destruction of that life. And as long as the constitution or the court is silent or vague on the definition of life, those who so define life must fight for the rights of the unborn. Now those who do not define that life form as a human being will necessarily and just as strongly fight for the right of a woman to control the use of her body. And therein lies the battle. I have traveled this state, as many of you have, I tell you the feelings are deep and intense, and what is happening here is happening in 49 other states; there is growing heat on this issue, but little additional light.

There is, in my opinion, a temporary truce. The argument has momentarily centered on the use of tax dollars, but the bigger question, of course, is when does a person exist and receive the protection of all the inalienable rights under the Constitution of the United States. I see here a potential for the destructiveness of representative democracy through elective power vendettas and single issue political targeting. The court is clearly saying it doesn't know how or when to define a person under our Constitution. But, Congress is clearly politically paralyzed in moving toward a constitutional amendment to attempt to resolve this issue, because both sides -- though numerically representing minority -- are growing in numbers, strength, militancy and political activism. And, case law appears too slow a process for such a fundamental issue. The only other solution available now under our Constitution is for the state to call a federal constitutional convention on and for this purpose. The movement is growing nationally; it is growing in this state. The use of a constitutional convention has been avoided since the first convention presented and drafted our Constitution. The process is fraught with danger. It is fraught with danger because there is no limit prescribed to the areas such a convention can consider because there is no description of the process of such a convention, and because there is no description of the delegate selection process. The constitution is too vague here, and that's why this approach is so dangerous. But, it appears to be the only real avenue available to many on both sides of this issue and, therefore, I urge this body to produce the necessary resolution to the United States Congress, to move initially on a constitutional amendment which would allow the proscription of subject matter of a given constitutional convention and limit it, possibly, to a single area and define the delegate selection process.

Here is where the Wisconsin idea can work to the benefit of the entire nation again. The research activity now underway on the campus here in Madison on the original constitutional convention under the direction of Professor Merrill Jensen will make this task basically easier for you to get at. Plus, some of you, as I have reviewed the credentials of members of this legislature, are inordinantly qualified to do this. You have been given your education by your society. Here is an opportunity now to pay back that debt by doing something of major consequence for the nation before we meet the calamity to which I believe we are heading. Don't let this problem fester; it will not go away; and the future will produce more heat and less light. You, as a legislature of a sovereign state, can lead the way and help other states to help your federal Congress. Your action would then clear the way for an appropriate convention which is useful and meaningful in one critical area without opening the terrible possibility of tinkering with the entire Constitution. Achieve that and, I tell you, it alone would justify the entire existence of this legislature for this session. Start us toward a legal resolution of the pro-choice/pro-life issue.

Secondary to this is our environmental health -- the track record here is good. One can find the basic philosophies of both Muir and Leopold. We do need to seriously review the impact of the combination of the old conservation functions with our need to enforce federal environmental protection standards. And a separation of those appears to me to be valuable whether within the same department or a separation out of that department. We need to review the entire structure and administrative relationship of game wardens, based on their input. We need to review the myriad of complaints by citizens about excessive intrusion in their lives by this large and powerful agency. And, therefore, I will shortly set up a citizen task force on natural resources as a means of letting the people speak to their government. Substantive changes, other than the cabinet question, should wait for this input from the people. I will also seek input from Mr. Earl and the Natural Resources Board on subject matter to be covered as well as some recommendations for task force membership.

Another environmental issue is related more to the social human environment -- and I refer to alcohol and drug abuse. Will you weigh carefully the alcohol age problem before simply moving it up a year, or two, or three? Will you also look at the package sale laws and their impact on drunken driving. I am sure you are aware as I am that teenage arrests for drunkenness on the road have moved up 160 per cent nationally. There has been an increase since the 18 year old law in the flow downward of alcohol to 15, 16, and 17 year olds. I have already indicated my preference that, if there is a change, then it would be to phase in a return to the previous age limits but without two classes of bars. That solution would increase administrative and identification problems for bar owners, but a photo-bearing driver's license program would solve most of that.

Now, on the matter of hard drugs, I urge you to consider mandatory sentencing for the sale of hard narcotics. We have the problem; it is growing, but not inordinately compared to national trends. But, please, don't wait until the problem is so massive as to be beyond control. Let us send the word out now to dealers and pushers everywhere in this nation -- Wisconsin is very hostile territory.

The third area of economic health is the keystone for most of our problems. Our health is improving, but not fast enough. Your Governor, and your Secretary, Mr. Brunner, do not have adequate tools to compete nationally for industry. I will need funds available as an economic pump-prime to encourage private lenders to provide risk venture capital in substantial amounts. States that have this now are in a better position to bring jobs in or to expand jobs in existing companies, and there are already examples where Wisconsin has not fared as well as other states. I will bring this proposal to you when it is developed. But, I tell you, the need is there.

Wisconsin has grown faster in population in the 1970's than any other midwestern state. We have an excellent work force. We now need to repair a neglected and deteriorating road system to meet the needs of an expanding economy. I will, therefore, propose, in the appropriation bill, additional funds for highways allocating a portion of the automotive sales tax for that purpose. I will also charge the Department of Transportation to make the best use of revenue to do three things: improve our deteriorating roads, preserve our rails, and assure adequate public transit -- all toward the goal of more jobs. And, as an aside, let me say I have also asked the Secretary of Transportation to propose the integration of the highway safety program into his Department to coordinate the construction and repair of roads with safety programs, to recognize drunken driving and speeding as a part of the highway problem, and, also, to coordinate the handling of hazardous materials no matter how those materials are transported.

An emphasis will be made in the economic area on foreign trade to market Wisconsin products and, hence, create more jobs. We will review mining potential to see what has caused the delay in its development. I tell you we can triple mining employment. Wisconsin firms can sell tens of millions of dollars of the mining equipment which is produced in this state, and we can develop the ancillary industries around the development of our mining potential. It is time to get on with pumping mineral dollars into our economy now that environmental safeguards have been instituted.

Our tourist industry goes well, but the state can promote more, and better roads will help as well.

Our agricultural industry has had a good year for the first time in recent years. The prices received by farmers increased more than production costs -- a very good sign. But we need to maintain the independent owner/operated farms, and I urge a review of the Farm Land Preservation Act. In April of 1974 we voted as a people to amend our constitution to allow a differential assessment of farmland to reduce taxes for farmers. Somewhere between that simplistic position and the current law lies the best solution to both protect the owner/operator from being forced to sell and, at the same time, to preserve agricultural land from shrinking in amount. I have asked the Lt. Governor to take the lead in developing this proposal for your consideration. Agricultural products, of course, will play a major part in the efforts of Secretary Brunner in foreign trade, and he will coordinate with Secretary Rhode in this effort.

We will give special attention to central city economic development. A proposal is being developed to try another approach - - community development corporations in the inner cities. These are businesses controlled by the local community which address the needs of neighborhoods, with equity capital coming through the selling of stock to local residents supplemented by grants from such sources as HUD, the Department of Labor, and the Ford Foundation. Can this be a successful mechanism to keep neighborhoods vital? It has already been demonstrated so in a few cases in this country. It is a successful mechanism for job training and employment as well, because it is tied to the community, it involves the community, and it involves community pride. We will also research every other approach instituted by other states in this area to determine the applicability to Wisconsin's inner city problems.

Lastly in this area, the energy question is related to our economic health as well as our environmental and individual health. I will propose a Department of Energy to deal with the energy policies which affect our citizens and our future. I will propose a separation of the Public Service Commission as a regulatory body from the administration functions of the department. And, I will ask that Energy Department to investigate the risks and benefits of an elected Public Service Commission. The results of that investigation will be recommended to you.

I am optimistic about energy growth and economic expansion in Wisconsin. There are many who are not. But, I tell you now, if the energy capacity for significant expansion is there in the late 1980's, it will be used. And I caution all involved. If you put stringent limits on future energy availability, you will, in effect, guarantee low growth.

fewer jobs, continued unemployment, and poverty. As the great Urban League leader Vernon Jordon has said in the debate on energy, the needs of the poor must be given at least equal weight with the needs of the utilities, the environmentalists, and the industrialists.

The fourth area is educational health. Historically we have a great record. The support has been great. Never before at any time in the history of this state have there been so many resources put into the field of education. But, society, in general, is not happy with the educational process or product; and parents are not very happy with the process or the product. We need now a holistic view of all education in its various diverse and separate functions -- the DPI, the VTAE, the UW, the Medical College of Wisconsin, the Educational Communications Board, the Higher Education Aids Board, the special state educational institutions and the manpower agency. The amount of tax dollars in all of those areas is staggering. Mr. Flintrop's committee is working on this now, and I will be getting input from him. But, I propose a single officer in the Executive Office to deal with all of these separate and relatively autonomous educational functions. It is my intention to use the manpower agency to begin to deal with the problem. This may eventually lead to a Secretary of Education to get the overview for all of us -- an education cabinet to provide input from the heads of all those separate agencies, plus representation from private, parochial, elementary, secondary and higher education. These are the educational leaders in this state who have the resources at their command to solve educational problems if only they will unite to create massive war on ignorance.

The protection of educational fiefdoms appears to have allowed ignorance to make substantial gains in our society. While we do need to protect the autonomy of various educational units, we also need a unity in this war.

I further propose that no state educational funds be added beyond the budget maintenance levels for the DPI, except for the teaching of basic educational skills at the K-4 level. If necessary, due to monetary and revenue constraints, we may have to consider taking such funds out of current level appropriations in the future. But, let us pledge ourselves here and now to assure that by the end of another decade, we do not have significant numbers of young, Wisconsin adults who do not have the ability to read, to write, or to figure arithmetically. We should not have tolerated that this long; we must not tolerate it any further. And the constant patchwork of remedial skills education all the way into higher education levels is neither economically nor educationally sound. Let us solve the problem at its source for the future as our first educational priority.

What about our public safety health? It is amazingly good considering what I see as a need for executive administrative reform. I look to the National Guard, and I am to appoint an Adjutant General to head the guard, and I find that I must make that appointment for a full ten year period. When I questioned that, I was informed that was an improvement over the previous situation when the appointment was for life. At a time when that position may have been ceremonial and administrative that may have served our needs, but there is no question today that the citizen soldier in the National Guard is, in fact, in an operational unit and must be headed by a commander who is, in fact, a potential field commander. I will request a change to a five year, fixed term appointment, and that would not begin until July 1, so that no new Governor is ever faced with that task immediately.

Emergency government -- the limits on the Governor's capacity to act where needed beyond the crucial needs of health, safety, and welfare shocked me when I first ran into them. And the recent snow problem in this state, and particularly the southeastern part of the state, highlighted the problem. The only way in which we could find a way to get dollars to private industry was to use some federal anti-recession funds with definitions flexible enough, according at least to our lawyers, to make aid possible. And, I truly hope our lawyers are right as I stand here this morning. I will bring to you a proposal, if one does not develop within this body, to see that the Governor has the resources necessary to act in an emergency beyond those he now has.

I will also ask you to address yourself to the whole area of the pardon function. It is related to the public safety. The Tennessee experience must have shocked you as much as it did me. And so I say to you now, I welcome consideration of the development of a process of pardon review prior to Gubernatorial consideration. My counsel is now seeking input from the National Legal Center in Virginia, and we will share what we learn with this body.

We also need reform in the corrections area. Obviously, brick and mortar programs are being developed. We must also recognize the fact that nobody stays in jail forever, and, therefore, correctional programs and correctional laws will need review. Recommendations will be forthcoming so that as people move back into society, they are no longer a danger to themselves, or society, or at least we have reduced the danger to the best of our human ability.

So I come to the last area, government health -- yours and mine. Some say it's too healthy, that there are too many rules and regulations, and I have asked the Lt. Governor to look in the area of small business, and with a basic charge to the Secretaries to begin to cull as well.

Legislative oversight of executive rulemaking is something which I gather you have genuine concern. You have a process in place now. I believe it needs some change. A key change could be to enact more specific legislation so that the executive knows what you truly intended. Let us start there.

But as you develop the procedures for legislative review, do not increase the numbers of rules and regulations. We already have too many. Do not delay the implementation of the laws which you pass. Do not substitute a handful of legislators for the entire legislature. Develop a process which focuses the attention of the legislature on those rules and regulations brought into specific question by the citizenry, and gets at citizen problems, and avoids inordinate legislative workload increase.

My own bias in this matter is toward post-approval. After rules and regulations have been in place for two years, you will know which ones are causing problems for the citizens of this state. And, lastly, create a process which meets the test of the separation of the executive branch from the legislative branch.

The northwest part of the state may be a part of our governmental health problem. There's a genuine feeling of alienation there from the rest of the state, and I will address that area separately.

The best way to improve government health, I believe, is with full cabinet government. And, therefore, I will propose the inclusion of the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Natural Resources, and the Veterans Affairs Secretary as Gubernatorial appointees, serving at the pleasure of the Governor and responsible directly to him. I will also propose that the Regulation and Licensing Secretary serve at the pleasure of the Governor, rather than for a fixed term. But, the several boards will continue as they are, to promulgate policy and to provide that independence of policy from Gubernatorial tinkering.

If the Governor is to be held accountable to you and responsible to you and to the people for the execution of the law in these areas, then the Governor must have direct authority over the Secretaries of these Departments as is the case in all other departments. What I propose is better government, and government that will make the Governor more able to carry out his oath.

This is my view of the state of the State and the needs for improvement of the general welfare. Let me close with this. You and I have been richly blessed with this State. It is truly a 23rd Psalm place -- whether viewed from the Apostles, from Ephraim, from Blue Mounds, from the Baraboo Bluffs, along the Brule, at night from an aircraft over the city of Milwaukee, or in the middle of the Chequamagon. But, you and I have a stewardship to guide and care for this place so that it is available to our next generations, this tiny portion of the earth with its unusual combination of beauty, rich land, mineral wealth, forests, lakes, streams and vigorous people, and most importantly, freedom. With all of this, our commitment as constituted government must be to a better tomorrow -- collectively achieved.

Thank you for letting me address you.
