August 19, 1993

To the Honorable, the Senate:

The state committee on educational goals, created as part of Act 269, completed its work March 2, 1993. In developing recommendations for state educational goals, the committee attempted to meet both the letter and the spirit of the law by involving in the process as many school boards, parents, students, citizens, and groups from throughout Wisconsin as possible.

As required, the committee conducted formal regional conferences in each of the 12 cooperative educational service agencies (CESA) in the state. To prepare for the conferences, school boards within each CESA solicited written and oral testimony about educational priorities from parents, students, teachers, businesses, senior citizens, clergy, service organizations, and the public at large. Based on this testimony, school boards developed statements of educational goals which were presented to the state committee in the regional hearings. More than 340 documents were gathered at the 12 goals hearings or received later. In all, nearly 200 school districts presented testimony to the state committee, as did nearly 150 others, including parents, business groups, and other interested citizens. These groups presented approximately 1,700 items for the committee's consideration.

In addition to formal regional hearings, the committee conducted 11 non-hearing activities designed to broaden participation in the process of establishing goals. The activities, held in the mornings and early afternoons prior to the formal hearings, included meetings with parents, student and faculty groups, and business and industry representatives; tours of schools and special programs, such as early childhood and English-as-a-second language; and observing demonstrations of innovations and reforms in education, such as distance learning and other technology applications.

In January 1993, following the hearings and testimony, the committee published a set of draft goals in the state's legal newspaper and made copies available to all of the other state newspapers, inviting public response. Over 300 responses were received for consideration. Finally, on February 9, 1993, the committee held the statutorily-required statewide conference in Stevens Point to hear further testimony. Nearly 40 additional groups or individuals testified at the statewide conference.

As you will see, the committee organized the information collected from around the state into three categories of educational goals: learner goals, institutional support goals, and societal support goals. Committee members acknowledge that achievement of many of these goals will be difficult to objectively assess. The committee does, however, believe that pupil assessment efforts should be concentrated on measurable, academic expectations as incorporated in the first three learner goals: building a knowledge base, developing thinking and communication processes, and applying knowledge and processes.

It has been the responsibility of this committee to recommend state educational goals. The goals will become most meaningful if their achievement is measured, at least in part, by a high-quality pupil assessment program. Act 269 clearly linked the state educational goals with the statewide pupil assessment program and required the state superintendent to appoint a committee consisting of teachers, parents, and other interested persons to advise him or her on how to utilize school district and state educational goals in the development of the assessment program. Members of that committee have received the recommendations of the educational goals committee and have begun their work.

Enclosed is a copy of Wisconsin's educational goals, as adopted by the committee. To fully implement the committee's recommendations concerning educational goals, the legislature may wish to consider amending Chapter 118 Wis. Stats. (s. 118.01), "Educational Goals and Expectations." We will each be happy to work with you as you consider the committee's recommendations.

Sincerely,

TOMMY G. THOMPSON
Governor
