1 AN ACT to amend 949.03 (1) (b) of the statutes; relating to: making victims of
2 the crime of stalking eligible for crime victim compensation awards.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, the department of justice (DOJ) makes crime victim compensation awards to or on behalf of victims of specified crimes who suffer personal injury or death. The specified crimes currently covered by the crime victim compensation law includes crimes such as homicide, robbery, burglary, battery, sexual assault and kidnapping. This bill adds the crime of stalking to the list of crimes for which DOJ may make crime victim compensation awards.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
