3 permits.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a person may receive a permit from the department of natural resources to hunt with a crossbow if the person has suffered a disability affecting certain upper extremities such as a hand or certain fingers. If the disability involves a permanent substantial loss of function in one or both hands, arms or shoulders, a permit may not be issued unless the person fails certain strength tests. Under current law, a licensed physician must administer these upper extremity strength tests. Also, under current law, a licensed chiropractor, as well as a licensed physician, may verify other disabilities for the purpose of issuing hunting permits other than crossbow permits to disabled persons. Under this bill, a licensed chiropractor may administer these upper extremity tests for the purpose of issuing crossbow permits.
