1     Relating to: commemorating the 3000th anniversary of Jerusalem.

2             Whereas, in 1996, the city of Jerusalem will commemorate its trimillennium, 3     marking the 3,000th anniversary of King David's establishment of Jerusalem as the 4     eternal capital of the Jewish nation; and

5             Whereas, for the past 3,000 years, the city of Jerusalem has been a site of 6     pilgrimage and a source of inspiration to artists and visionaries, calling forth 7     religious longing and artistic creativity in all ages and in all continents around the 8     globe; and

9             Whereas, the trimillennium will offer an opportunity to support the efforts of 10    the city of Jerusalem to preserve and protect its unique historic and religious 11    character while developing it as a modern city for the benefit of all of its residents 12    and its many visitors; and

13            Whereas, the trimillennium will offer an opportunity to give expression to the 14    firm commitment of the city of Jerusalem to keeping the city a place where all people 15    are welcome to freely practice their faiths and visit the shrines that are holy to their 16    religions; now, therefore, be it
