February 2, 1998

To the Honorable, the Legislature:

We have completed an evaluation of the Department of Health and Family Services' regulation of Wisconsin nursing homes and a review of the Board on Aging and Long Term Care's role in monitoring nursing homes, as directed by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee. Approximately 100 surveyors in five regional offices of the Department regularly inspect the state's 430 nursing homes. Based on 2,328 visits to nursing homes in fiscal years 1995-96 and 1996-97, the Department issued 5,642 federal citations that led to a variety of enforcement actions including $410,075 in penalties, and 751 state citations resulting in $334,480 in forfeitures.

Federal regulations appear to provide an adequate foundation for the Department's regulatory efforts, although enforcement of these regulations appears to have been affected by a period of transition following their implementation in July 1995. State statutes and rules, in contrast, are outdated. Although work on new state rules began in 1996, new rules are not expected to be completed until 1999. Because the Department's surveyors exhibit different patterns of citing practices among the regions within the state, we include a recommendation that the Department take action to improve consistency among its surveyors. In addition, the Legislature could consider statutory amendments to increase penalties for nursing homes that have been unresponsive to regulatory efforts and to clarify the circumstances in which these nursing homes should be penalized.

The Board's ombudsmen help monitor nursing home conditions and assist residents, their families, and nursing home staff in the resolution of problems and concerns. The amount of work that ombudsmen can do with regard to monitoring the work of the Department or responding to consumers' concerns is limited by their number, which is small in comparison to programs in other states even after the recent increase from 8 to 11 positions. Finally, more could be done by both the Department and the Board to enable the public to contribute more effectively to the provision of quality care.

We appreciate the courtesy and cooperation extended to us by staff in the Department of Health and Family Services and the Board on Aging and Long Term Care. Responses from the two agencies are included as Appendices I and II, respectively.

Respectfully submitted,
DALE CATTANACH
State Auditor
