Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate:

When a document recorded in the Register of Deeds office is corrected, the practice is to cross or "white" out the error and rerecord the corrected document. In addition, corrections are made by rerecording a correct document in place of an incorrect one. A person rerecording a corrected document must pay the ordinary filing fee, which for most documents is $10 for the first page and $2 for each additional page.

Under the bill, an affidavit of correction would be recorded to correct errors in a previously filed document.

Based on discussions with the Wisconsin Register of Deeds Association, an affidavit of correction would typically be a one-page document. To the extent that affidavits of correction require fewer pages than corrections under current practice, county revenues will decrease under the bill.
