10/22/99 Per Mark Patronsky - Give DATCP more flexibility. Shall promulgate rules applicable to fish farms as necessary to require evidence of fish health. Rules may require different forms of evidence for different types of fish farms. Not annual certificates - instead certificates of veterinary inspection from veterinarians

Per Mark:

10/25 - stick with health certificates, but not annual

- 2 requirement that ~~provide~~ operators of fish farms obtain annual health
- 3 certificates.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Current law requires a person who operates a fish farm to annually register the fish farm with the department of agriculture, trade and consumer protection (DATCP). Current law also requires the operator of a fish farm to annually obtain a fish health certificate for any fish eggs present or any fish reared on the fish farm, except that an operator who does not sell, distribute or release live fish or fish eggs may rely on the health certificate of the person from whom the operator obtained fish or fish eggs.

This bill eliminates the absolute requirement to obtain a fish health certificate and instead authorizes DATCP to require a fish farm operator to obtain an annual fish health certificate.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

4 SECTION 1. 95.60 (3) of the statutes is amended to read:
