Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate Under current law, a county jail must keep certain prisoners separate from other prisoners. Prisoners who have not been convicted must be kept separate from those who have, prisoners who are mentally ill must be kept separate from prisoners who are not mentally ill, and prisoners of different genders must be kept separate. This bill would require that all county jails establish prisoner classification systems by January 1, 2002. These classification systems would be used to determine prisoner housing assignments, the type of supervision necessary, and the delivery of services and programs to the prisoners. The Department of Corrections' Office of Detention Facilities will be responsible for overseeing the development of new administrative rules, assisting with training on system development, and reviewing and approving counties' classification proposals. The Department can not determine what the state fiscal impact will be of these oversight responsibilities. Individual counties are also likely to incur additional costs when replacing their existing segregation systems with new systems that comply with the proposed statutes. Counties will need to develop a plan for a new system, they will need to train staff on the new system, and finally they will need to implement the new system. Several counties' current systems already comply with these proposed statutes. All other counties will need to develop new classification systems. Some counties may choose to develop manually-driven systems while other counties may implement automated systems. Because there is such a large variation in the amount of resources each county will need, based on local development and implementation decisions, it is not possible to determine local costs.
