1 AN ACT to amend 71.03 (2) (a) 1. of the statutes; relating to: the individual
2 income tax filing threshold for certain married persons.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, most individuals who are domiciled in this state during the entire taxable year are required to file an income tax return, depending on their gross income, age and filing status. If a person's gross income is at or above a certain threshold amount, he or she is required to file an income tax return.

The different threshold amounts that necessitate filing a tax return under current law follow: $5,200 if the individual is single and under 65 years old; $5,700 if the individual is single and 65 years old or older; $7,040 if the individual files as a head of household; $7,200 if married and filing jointly, and both spouses are under 65 years old; $7,700 if one spouse is at least 65 years old; $8,200 if both spouses are at least 65 years old; and $3,420 if married and filing separately.

This bill changes current law for married couples filing jointly, both spouses at least 65 years old, by adopting the threshold amount that exists under the Internal Revenue Code (IRC). The threshold amounts under the IRC are the sum of the personal exemption, standard deduction and additional standard deduction, if any. For filing a 1998 return, the threshold amount for a married couple filing jointly, both spouses at least 65 years old, is $14,200.
