(3) New suggested sec. 8a of the bill (creating new s. 196.499(3)(ap), Stats.)

s. 196.499(3)(ap) of the statutes is created to read:

(ap) Notwithstanding paragraph (am), a telecommunications carrier may not charge an intrastate rate which exceeds its interstate rate for a similar call or service.

Explanation: Currently, many IXC's charge rates for intralata long distance which exceed, in some cases substantially, those rates charged for interlata long distance. Capping the intralata rate at the interlata rate, the latter being more subject to competitive forces, should have the effect of reducing many intralata long distance rates. This, in effect, produces some manner of customer pass through of access charge reduction accomplished in s. 8 of the bill.
